U. S. BUSINESS MEN ASK INCREASE FOR FEDERAL WORKERS

Complete Revision of Employment Policy Urged by Chamber of Commerce.

RESULT OF REFERENDUM AMONG 1,400 CONCERNS

Advocate Adequate and Uniform Pay Through Reclassification and Regarding Positions.

Complete revision of the employment policy of the federal government was recommended today by the United States Chamber of Commerce as the result of a referendum vote on the subject just completed among the 1,400 business organizations in the chamber's membership.

The present system under which personnel for the federal civil service is secured and managed should be revised.

"Adequate and uniform pay under essentially like conditions should be established as a fundamental principle for the federal civil service through reclassification and regarding positions."

Reclassification by Statute.

"III. Reclassification should be by statute based on investigations already made and further investigation by the Civil Service Commission."

"IV. Reclassification should be instituted by the Civil Service Commission and the budget bureau and current correction made by Congress aided by these agencies."

"Promotion should be given statutory recognition as the preferred method for filling vacancies and the promotion clearly defined and provided merit under civil service regulations."

"VI. All administrative officers not responsible for determining pay should be included under civil service rules."

"VII. Efficiency records should be developed by the Civil Service Commission."

"VIII. Removal of an employee should be possible upon a written statement of reasons to the employee with opportunity for a written reply, but no appeal above the head of the department."

Recommendations by Committee.

The recommendations made to the national committee by its committee on budget and efficiency, after they were sent out for review, were approved by arguments, pro and con, on revision of the employment system. There were few opposing votes, it is estimated.

Reclassification and related problems affecting the civil service, the report of the committee on the subject is of importance.

"The personnel problem of an enterprise which employs the services of more than half a million employees cannot be minimized, the committee says, by the fact that the government is not in a position to pay for the services of its employees in a manner which is not only equitable but also efficient. Recent developments make it not only opportune but imperative that the government should take the thoughtful consideration which it deserves."

"For all practical purposes," said the committee, "personnel problems in the administration of the national government are of a magnitude which is a half million men and women employed on work of almost every conceivable character."

"In private industrial and commercial life," said the report, "the efficient utilization of the operating and managing forces of the organization is now accepted as vital importance to successful management of the business. In this field of administration, the government has lagged far behind."

"With reference to its recommendation that adequate machinery be established, the committee says: 'It is an elementary proposition that a body of employees permitted with a sense of unjust and inequitable treatment by the employer in the primary matter of just pay for services rendered will be inefficient and expensive. Present conditions in the federal service tend to foster a feeling of resentment and indifference to duty, and half-hearted effort and an undoubted source of great waste of public money.'

An important recommendation of the committee is the one having to do with the position of the civil service of administrative officers not charged with determining matters of public policy. This suggestion the committee said:

"One of the most serious handicaps to both economy and efficiency in the federal service is undoubtedly to be found in the practical exclusion from the permanent civil service of a very large part of the administrative offices of real distinction. No one would suggest that cabinet officers and their immediate assistants should be other than the personal selection of the President or of themselves, and permanency in the higher positions of the civil service, such as the Department of State, such as ambassadors and ministers, probably will have to be secured in a manner other than that of the civil service rule."

Appointment by Political Favor.

"There still remain, however, a very large number of positions which are filled properly with the permanent operating force of the government and should be so recognized. These include principal local officials as postmasters of the first, second and third classes."

Appointments to these offices continue to be made almost without exception on the basis of political favor. Each change in administration brings about a wholesale change in this personnel. The waste is tremendous and obvious."

Members of the committee who made the report are: W. L. Claiborne, of Pittsburgh, chairman; Paul W. Brown, editor of St. Louis; W. H. Cowles, editor and publisher, Spokane; W. E. A. Fraile, economist of the University of Illinois; Frank J. Goodnow, president of Johns Hopkins University; F. J. Harriman, engineer, Boston; Messrs. W. P. Sledge, lawyer, of Chicago; George C. Tamm, of New York; Charles Acheson, Toledo; and Santa Fe railway, Chicago; Paul M. Warburg, financier of New York; F. Phillips, director of Institute for Government Research, Washington.

DAWES TO HEAD BUDGET.

Chicago Banker Picked by President as Director.

Charles G. Dawes, the Chicago banker, has been selected by President Harding for director of the budget under the budget law recently enacted by Congress.

Mr. Dawes' nomination is expected to go to the Senate shortly and if confirmed he will take office July 1, the date fixed in the law for inauguration of the new fiscal system.

Mr. Dawes is a brilliant general in the American expeditionary force, and at one time was prominent in consideration for Secretary of the Treasury in President Harding's cabinet.

He attracted wide attention last February when he denounced in a dramatic fashion the methods adopted by a war expenditures committee of Congress before which he was testifying.

BRANCH LIBRARY SITE IS SELECTED

D. C. Commissioners Also Name Architect for Building in Southeast Section.

The triangular lot bounded by South Carolina avenue, D and 7th streets southeast, has been decided upon by the Commissioners as the site for the new branch library building, Col. Charles W. Kutz, chairman of the branch library building commission, announced today.

Announcement also was made that Edward L. Tilton, a New York architect, has been engaged to prepare plans for the building. Mr. Tilton, it is stated, has made a specialty of library construction.

Erection of the building will be under the supervision of the building commission, which is composed of Commissioner Kutz, chairman; Theodore W. Noyes, president of the board of trustees of the Public Library, and Charles J. Bell, chairman of the board of trustees of the branch library in the Southeast, which has been looked forward to by the library trustees as a most desirable project by the appropriation of $10,000, by a library site in the emergency school budget.

The Carnegie Corporation of New York some years ago offered to give the site of the building to the library, with the proviso that the District should furnish the site.

"In enforcing the laws," said Mr. C. G. Dawes, "there is no question of the public interest, which should stand back of the splendid work of the Commissioners now have to do."

Dr. William Tindall, a vice president of the Association of Old Inhabitants of the District of Columbia, spoke in part as follows:

"Just forty-seven years ago today, the second round, with his 78 of yesterday, gave him 148, one stroke behind Harry Vardon, former British open champion, who had 147 for the two rounds."

SHEPHERD'S ADVICE TO CITY REBUILT AT PICTURE FUELING

Former Governor's Words to "Fight for District" Recalled at Exercises.

Washington should heed the words of Alexander R. Shepherd and stand united in the fight for representation in Congress and in other civil battles, Edward F. Colladay told several hundred persons who assembled in the boardroom of the Northern Liberty building today to witness the unveiling of an oil painting of the late governor of the city.

Mr. Colladay, speaking as vice president of the Board of Trade, of which Gov. Shepherd was the first honorary member, recited a number of the important problems facing the District today and then urged his fellow citizens to heed these words, uttered by Gov. Shepherd in 1887:

"Stand Shoulder to Shoulder." "Don't quarrel among yourselves. When you do you jeopardize your best interests. Stand shoulder to shoulder and fight for the good of the District."

Continuing, Mr. Colladay said: "Today we are at another stage in the development of the National Capital—a time when we should take the words of Shepherd as our guide. Just as he took up the railroad tracks that marked Pennsylvania avenue, filled the James Creek canal, raised the Northern Liberty market and fought many other battles for his city, so we today have the half-and-half plan of fiscal relations with the federal government to defend and representation in Congress and the status of citizens to fight for."

"We have some people who ridicule these questions, and unless we stand shoulder to shoulder, as Shepherd advised us, we shall be unable to fight these battles through."

Mr. Colladay then recited the following words of the late governor of the District: "The harnessing of Great Falls, completion of the park system, acquisition of more playgrounds, more and better schools, solution of the great traction problem, more housing for the people, more and better paid police and fire departments, enforcement of the laws of the city."

Public Opinion as Weapon.

"In enforcing the laws," said Mr. Colladay, "there is no question of the public interest, which should stand back of the splendid work of the Commissioners now have to do."

Dr. William Tindall, a vice president of the Association of Old Inhabitants of the District of Columbia, spoke in part as follows:

"Just forty-seven years ago today, the second round, with his 78 of yesterday, gave him 148, one stroke behind Harry Vardon, former British open champion, who had 147 for the two rounds."

CHARLES C. FOSTER RESIGNS MAIL POST

W. H. Moyer May Be Successor as Superintendent of Penal Institutions.

Charles C. Foster, general superintendent of penal institutions of the District, submitted his resignation to the Commissioners today.

W. H. Moyer, formerly head of the reformatory at Frankfort, Ky., is understood to be seriously considered for the place.

Commissioner Rudolph, who called at the White House yesterday afternoon with Samuel J. Prescott, is said to have discussed with the President the matter of naming a successor to Mr. Foster. Mr. Rudolph would not discuss the matter today.

Changes Forecast.

That changes would be made in the management of the penal institutions of the District was indicated at the time the present board of Commissioners was sworn in. Commissioner Rudolph, who has special superintendence of the penal institutions, requested the resignation of W. H. Hall, formerly assistant superintendent in charge of the workhouse at Occoquan, Va. The position of assistant superintendent is still vacant.

Although Mr. Rudolph, head of the jail at Louisville, Ky., was appointed April 1, 1918, to fill the position of superintendent of the workhouse at Occoquan, made vacant by the resignation of the late W. H. Whittaker.

Efficient Administration.

An epidemic of escapes from the jail in Washington caused the District Commissioners April 24, 1919, to consider the resignation of Mr. Foster to the position of superintendent of penal institutions, which brought the jail workhouse and reformatory at Lorton, Va., under his supervision.

George W. Evans of the Oldest Inhabitants recited the military record of Gov. Shepherd.

John C. Rudolph, in opening the exercises said:

The Commission might as efficiently have received and accepted for the municipality a portrait of the late Governor of the United States, or a picture of the shepherd, executed about the time that the great capital builder was in his prime, and which might have been presented to us by his widow.

Polytechnic Institute for the Blind to Begin Campaign the Coming Week.

The campaign for $25,000 for the Polytechnic Institute for the Blind is to open Thursday or Friday of next week.

Bishop Alfred Harding of the diocese of Washington has accepted appointment as the head of the Episcopal pastors' committee, and has issued a call to the rectors of his diocese to help in the campaign.

The church section is busily engaged in perfecting the organization of church committees, and it is expected that by Thursday practically every church in the District will have named its chairman.

Brig. Gen. Charles E. Sawyer is a friend of the institute, and will represent the committee in placing the cause of the adult blind workers before the President and Mrs. Harding. Mrs. May D. Lightfoot is in charge of the appointments committee.

A substantial check has been received from Naomi Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, and it is expected that within a few days committees will have been appointed in all of the local Eastern Star chapters. Friendship Chapter of Tenleytown has already sent in the names of a committee of four workers. Next Sunday will be "Institute Sunday" in the churches of the District, and each pastor has been asked to give a short address about the best way to win a man's heart was through his stomach.

Other speakers were J. O. Mills of the Whitcomb of Massachusetts, A. B. Carder of Missouri, Harry Baldwin of Massachusetts and John S. Birmingham of New York. Musical entertainment concluded the program.

Negro Lynched at Gate of State Convict Farm in Mississippi

By the Associated Press.

JACKSON, Miss., June 21.—Louis Wimbly, an eighteen-year-old negro convict, was lynched late yesterday afternoon at the gate of the state convict farm in Hinds county, seven miles from this city.

Wimbly was a trusty who worked around the residence of Asst. Sergt. Berryhill. Yesterday morning about 8 o'clock, while Mrs. Berryhill was at home alone with her little five-year-old daughter, the negro attacked her, striking her on the head, rendering her unconscious, tied her and assaulted her. Some minutes later her husband found her still unconscious, but after physicians had attended her for two hours she regained consciousness and to the assault.

Two negro trustees, convicted, caught Wimbly several miles from the farm and brought him back. As a matter of precaution, Traveling Sergt. Sam Nunery was ordered to bring Wimbly to Jackson and place him in the Hinds county jail, and it was while attempting to do this that he was overpowered by a mob and his prisoner hanged.

Admit Trying to Wreck Trains.

PETERSBURG, Va.—Fred Hill, John Patterson, James Jennings and Mose Wilson, all negroes, pleaded guilty in Hinds county court to charges of advising attempting to wreck Norfolk and Western railroad passenger trains near Pooles Sliding, and were sentenced to terms ranging from two years to twelve years in the state penitentiary. The purpose was to wreck the trains and rob the passengers and mails in the confusion that would follow. Only by a miracle was a wreck averted in the second attempt.

Sailors Fined $50 Each.

MOBILE, Ala.—Philip Gordon, charged with damaging the machinery of the Shipping Board steamer "Caldwell," and E. Calderwood, charged with assaulting the mate of the vessel, were fined $50 in the federal court here yesterday while the ship was at Santos, Brazil.

Delay Ex-Governor's Trial.

PENSACOLA, Fla.—Federal court officials have decided not to call a special term of the United States district court here to try Sidney J. Catlett, former Governor of Florida, under indictment for perjury. The case will be brought up at the October term. The former governor is at liberty under $25,000 bond and is at his plantation in Walton county.

Police Court to Handle Wet Cases.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va.—Prohibition cases which heretofore have swamped the dockets in higher courts here may now be prosecuted in police court, the city council having adopted an ordinance similar to that of the state prohibition law. Under the ordinance the city will prosecute violation of the law, collect fines and keep the proceeds from sale of confiscated liquors.

Gets Jail and Deportation.

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—Robert Solch of Youngstown was sentenced to three years in the Atlanta penitentiary, at the expiration of which he was ordered deported to Croatia by Federal Judge D. C. Westenhaver on a charge of blackmail. Solch was alleged, demanded $5,000 from George H. Powell last February.

Opera House to Be Sold.

NEW YORK.—The Manhattan Opera House, on West 33rd street, will be sold at auction by Sheriff Notte June 22 by order of the supreme court to satisfy a lien of $143,324. The lien is held by Stella H. Kohn and Rose H. Tostevin, daughters of the late Oscar Hammerstein.

Dynamite Halts Fire.

HACKENSACK, N. J.—The use of dynamite halted a fire at Camp Merritt, which destroyed 20 empty barracks and threatened residences nearby. The fire was the third at Camp Merritt within the last few months. The camp was abandoned several months ago and the barracks sold to a Chicago contracting firm for demolition. Police believe all three fires to have been incendiary origin.

Effort to Damage Ship's Engine.

BOSTON.—Powdered emery was found in the engine and shaft bearings of the steamer Delia, under no name, on an east Boston pier. The steamer, owned by the Shipping Board and operated by C. H. ROAD POLICY URGED TO CUT LIVING COST

Senate Committee Reports in Favor of Federal Commission Bill.

Hope of further reduction in the cost of living through broadening and strengthening of the nation's highway policies is held out by majority members of the Senate post offices and post roads committee, in a formal report yesterday recommending enactment of the Townsend bill to create a federal highway commission and to establish an interstate road system.

Old Methods Obsolete. Declaring that "the modern motor vehicle has rendered obsolete old methods of highway construction, maintenance, and administration," the report adds:

"Our highway policies must be broadened and strengthened to meet this changed condition, if public expenditures are to be conserved and the best interests of the nation cared for. Living costs can be reduced, our defenses strengthened and a new spirit of nationalism created if we use intelligently this new means of communication between communities and states."

The report, in presenting the provision of the bill to create a distinct commission of three members for federal highway administration, points out that appropriations for highways constitute 60 per cent of the total given the Department of Agriculture, the present agency of administration, and adds that if the present arrangement continues it "will serve to subordinate the purely agricultural problems to questions of much industrial and agricultural, and in time will overshadow the purpose for which the Department of agriculture was created, greatly to the detriment of the agricultural interests."

Selection of Routes.

Touching on the authority of the proposed commission over selection of routes, which has been attacked by states' rights advocates as a usurpation of state functions, the report contends that "unless this final power is lodged in the federal government, state roads of primary importance may fail to connect at state lines and thus disjoin an interstate system and obstruct traffic from one state to the other."

URGES UNEMPLOYED TO WORK ON FARMS

Secretary Davis Suggests Best Means of Relief for Workers Where Mills Are Closed.

Solution of the unemployment problem in the United States rests in a change in the mental attitude of the men skilled in trades, who, when the mills close down or trade is slack, should find employment outside their trades, according to Secretary of Labor Davis.

Mr. Davis said he had found thousands of tin workers and workers in allied trades in the central eastern industrial section out of work and rapidly running into debt because they were waiting for work in their particular trades, knowing at the same time many mills will not open until early fall. He said these men should find work wherever it is available, and suggested farming as one means of tiding them over the industrial depression of midsummer.

Thousands of men are needed in the wheat fields of Kansas, the Secretary said. These men, he added, could readily be obtained from the ranks of those temporarily out of employment, owing to a shut-down of many mills. Many of them are living on their savings and do not appear to be making an effort to get work outside their trades."

Mr. Davis said: "The condition is an unhealthy one and could be easily bettered if the unemployed tradesmen would make an effort to secure work elsewhere than in their trades. Of course, they cannot expect to get $10 or $15 a day on the farm," the Secretary added. "But they will get enough money to carry them through the summer and probably enough to last them until the mills open up in the fall."

Mr. Davis announced in connection with the guild movement in England that he may send Lawrence Veiller of New York to England to study the movement with the view of proposing a similar movement in this country.

National Capital Press, Inc., Wants $9,839.92 Paid on Forged Checks.

The National Capital Press, Inc., has filed suit in the District Supreme Court to recover $9,839.92 from the Merchants Bank. The amount sued for represents the face value of twenty-two checks drawn to the order of the plaintiff and which are said to have been cashed at the defendant bank by Raymond E. Decker after he had forged the endorsement of the plaintiff. Decker pleaded guilty some weeks ago to an indictment for forgery. Attorneys Drain & Drain appear for the plaintiff.

PLEADS FOR IRELAND.

Senator Norris Argues for Passage of His Resolution.

"Ireland free will be England's friend; Ireland in subjugation will be England's enemy," Senator Norris of Nebraska, republican, told the Senate yesterday, in an address on the Irish situation and his resolution proposing that the United States Senate shall go on record as saying "the Irish people are entitled to a government of their own choice."

The Nebraska senator was a member of the unofficial committee of hundred which investigated the Irish question. "It will require an army of Englishmen," continued Senator Norris, "to hold Ireland in subjugation, and this must go on all the time. When the days of trouble come it will be perfectly natural and logical for the Irish people to embrace the day of Great Britain's trouble and make another struggle for Irish freedom."

The treatment of the Irish people by the British forces almost begs description, the senator declared. The military forces, he charged, violate every civilized rule of warfare and cannot be defended, and added that no parallel for existing conditions in Ireland could be found except in "the darkest days of barbarism."

FIREMAN ASKS $25,000.

Richard J. Holmes, an employee of the fire department, who was riding on a hose wagon which was in collision with a street car, has filed suit against the Washington Railway and Electric Company to recover $25,000 damages for alleged personal injuries. The collision occurred at 4th street and Virginia avenue southwest, January 16 last. Attorneys James O'Shea, John L. Sacks and Anna L. Cooke appear for the plaintiff.

DEBTS, $32,254.76; NO ASSETS.

Alfred M. Schwartz, receiver of the bankrupt Washington Theater Productions, Inc., has filed in the District Supreme Court a schedule of the assets and liabilities of the concern, which began business last September and failed in March. Debts totaling $32,254.76 are enumerated and the company has no assets, it is stated.

ALL OIL BURNERS FOR PACIFIC FLEET

Coal Burners Ordered to Atlantic for Economy and Tactical Efficiency.

Secretary Denby has ordered a reorganization of the Atlantic and Pacific fleets so as to concentrate coal-burners in the former and oil burners in the latter fleet. The changes ordered will strengthen the Pacific fleet and generally make for economy and tactical efficiency.

In accordance with the new policy the battleships Arizona, Nevada and Oklahoma will be transferred from the Atlantic to the Pacific fleet. The battleship Maryland also will be sent, when completed, to the Pacific fleet. The battleships New York, Texas, Wyoming and Arkansas are transferred from the Pacific to the Atlantic fleet.

When the battleship California is completed she will replace the New Mexico as the flagship of the Pacific fleet. The Maryland will be the most powerful ship in the fleet and will be the first battleship to be equipped with 16-inch rifles.

As rearranged, the fleets will be made up as follows: Pacific—Flagship California, Maryland, New Mexico, Idaho, Tennessee, Mississippi, Arizona, Oklahoma and Nevada. Atlantic—Flagship Pennsylvania, Wyoming, New York, Texas, Arkansas, Florida, North Dakota and Delaware. The battleship Utah is assigned as flagship of the European squadron, Secretary Denby said.

Three destroyer divisions will be transferred from the Pacific to the Atlantic. The Atlantic and Pacific fleets will be united for about three months each year in either the Caribbean sea or the Pacific near Panama bay for training in combined tactical operations.

MARY GARDEN HOPEFUL.

Regards London Outlook for Chicago Opera Company Uncertain.

By Cable to The Star and Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1921.

LONDON, England, June 21.—Miss Mary Garden and G. M. Spangler, of the Chicago Opera Company, who came to London to investigate the possibilities of a season for their company at Covent Garden, regard the outlook for this experiment as uncertain but not without hope. British music lovers welcome the Chicago singers with enthusiasm. Public-spirited men and women of all parties and friends would do likewise.

Certain exigencies connected with the dates of existing arrangements and other matters constitute a difficulty more or less stubborn, but Mr. Spangler hopes that every obstacle may be overcome.

"We greatly desire to arrange this season," said he. "Naturally all singers like to appear in the world metropolis. But such considerations are relatively slight. We have in mind the larger interests of opera as such and the still more important cause of international good will."

What a difference that tiny filament of tungsten makes!

The use of tungsten as a reproducing point was a real discovery and an actual invention. Its soft fibrous qualities were what had been sought for years.

This truly remarkable metal always insures a perfect reproduction of the music and at the same time gives long life to the records. The tungsten wears itself away rather than the records.

You get these advantages only in the Victrola Tungs-tone Stylus—the Victor Company patented the stylus composed of tungsten and therefore has the exclusive right to the use thereof in any form of talking-machine needle.

Three tones—extra loud, full, soft. The new extra loud stylus will be largely used for dance music and outdoors. 10 cents per package of four points—enough to play at least 1000 records. Semi-permanent. Changeable. Sold by all Victor dealers.

ACTIVITIES OF REDS IN U. S. REVEALED

Correspondent Quotes Recent Report Regarding Extent of Seditious Teachings.

To the Editor of The Star:

Not only are social customs in large degree controlled by phrases, but we are to no inconsiderable extent governed by them. Consider the conditions which exist in this country today in regard to the inculcation and dissemination of seditious teachings, poisoning the minds of the discontented and uneducated and openly intended to destroy our institutions. A recent thorough investigation of the facts by Wade H. Ellis, formerly attorney general of the United States, shows that the activities of the reds, the I. W. W., the bolsheviks and the advanced socialists and communists were never so great or so bold as at present. The overture is openly advocated. There are more than 250 daily, weekly or monthly publications in twenty-six different languages circulated in the United States which urge direct action to destroy the government. Inflammatory pamphlets from Russia are coming here in large numbers and being distributed throughout the country. Secret meetings are being held in all the large cities, where revolution by bloodshed is incited.

People Taxed to Help Pay.
Not only so, but as the law now stands the people of the country are taxed to help pay for the dissemination of the propaganda of the deadly poison. Read a single extract from a recent issue of the Communist, which fairly represents them all:

"You must organize in the shops and use the strike against the government. You must be prepared so that when the revolutionary crisis comes you can turn a general strike against the government. And this uprising to overthrow the government."

What is the government doing to protect its citizens from such a danger, citizens from whom it is exacting enormous taxes? Nothing, so far as we can see. Certainly nothing that has checked or is diminishing the evil. Is it not the duty of the government to exercise all its powers and they are ample to protect itself and its citizens from this growing menace?

What is the reason for its inaction? So far as can be ascertained, a phrase—a phrase which has been distorted and twisted from its original meaning and purpose and made a fetish—"Free speech and a free press," which is interpreted to mean that any one may say or print anything whatever without restriction or punishment unless and until active violence results. It is as though a board of health, aware the disease germs were being spread about in its jurisdiction, were to say "We can do nothing until some one is proved to have been infected and died." And this at a time when it is universally agreed that the most effective means of amelioration and improvement in every sphere of life is prevention.

Arrest of Promoters Urged.
Every promoter of sedition should be arrested and jailed and their vile sheets suppressed. But, no! We must maintain free speech and a free press inviolate at any cost, until a revolution breaks out and blood flows in the streets, and then, perhaps, we may venture to try to put it down.

There is another phrase which is perverted to a wrong and harmful use in another direction. The government is at a loss where to turn to meet the enormous and with the coming bonus bill, increasing demands for revenue with which to meet its engagements and carry on its activities. Lying neglected, not even mentioned, are resources which could be made to yield heavily. Tea and coffee, luxuries, not necessities, and a tax on them would furnish a basis for reciprocity with other countries. Some one in an evil day invented the phrase, "A free breakfast table," and no party dare to tax tea or coffee in the face of it. Why the breakfast table should be free any more than everything else that is taxed has never been shown, but there stands the phrase, and no one dares to butt up against it. Tea and coffee stand really on the same footing as tobacco as regards their availability for taxation and the propriety of taxing them.

PIER WHERE SIMS LANDS TO BE BARRED TO PUBLIC
Officials of Ship Line Decide on Heavy Police Guard on Reports of Demonstration.

NEW YORK, June 21.—When the Olympic, on which Rear Admiral Sims is returning to this country by order of Secretary Denby, docks Wednesday it will be at a bare pier.

Officials of the line decided, after a conference with port officials, to exclude the public "to avoid discrimination."

There have been many reports that proponents and opponents of the admiral's London speech, in which he dealt with Irish-Americans, were planning demonstrations of opposite nature. The pier will be heavily policed.

According to a statement made by Secretary Denby, no special arrangements have been made by the Navy Department to expedite the landing of Admiral Sims on his arrival at New York on the liner Olympic tomorrow, and he is expected to remain on the steamer until it reaches its dock. Under his orders, Admiral Sims will proceed to this city without delay and report in person to the Secretary of the Navy.

Referring to reports from New York that Irish sympathizers were planning a demonstration for the naval officer as a result of his criticism during a London speech of the activities of friends of Ireland in the United States, the Secretary said he hoped no situation would develop to make it impossible for an admiral of the United States to land in the ordinary way or to be embarrassed by any element when he landed.

STEAMER ORION CHARTERED.
NEWPORT NEWS, Va., June 21.—The shipping board Steamer Orion, the only passenger ship among the 356 laid up in James River, has been chartered by the Baltimore Trans-Atlantic Steamship Company and will be reconducted here. She formerly was the German liner Prince Oskar. She was built in 1902 for the Hamburg-American line and is a craft of 6,026 gross tons.

PICTURE TRADED FOR ONE BANANA APPEARS TO BE A MICHELANGELO

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, June 21.—There came to Toronto recently an Italian immigrant, with a bundle of clothing under one arm and a canvas under the other.

For days he looked in vain for work. Today, with his purse as empty as his stomach, he approached the fruit stand of Angelo Carpenelo.

"How much da banan?" he asked, pointing.

"Five cents," was the answer.

The immigrant glanced at the canvas he carried, gazed at the fruit and looked again at the canvas.

"Take da pic," he asked, holding out the painting.

The bargain was struck. The immigrant departed with a banana and Carpenelo bore the painting to a fellow countryman who deals in art objects. The dealer examined the picture—Christ crowned with thorns—and then at a faint, illegible signature in the corner. There was a burst of Italian superlatives and Carpenelo heard the names "Michelangelo" and "Guido."

"How much you give?" asked Carpenelo.

But the dealer's business sense came to the fore and he suggested that the painting be laid before a jury of experts.

Now Carpenelo is anxiously waiting to learn if bananas are worth thousands of dollars each or nothing.

GERMAN IDLE DEMAND WORKERS GIVE THEM JOBS

Beat Assembly's President With Blackjack in Riot of Thousands.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 20.—Thousands of unemployed workmen today entered the Labor Union Assembly and demanded that all workmen who had had steady employment should give up their jobs in order that the idle workmen might be employed. The president of the Labor Union Assembly was badly beaten with blackjacks and left bleeding on the floor.

The fight spread until 5,000 persons were embroiled, using fists, chairs and sticks. Repeated alarms brought several hundred police to the scene, who cleared the building after the uproar had continued for two hours. The injured president was taken to a nearby restaurant, the doors of which were locked. The unemployed demonstrators, however, attacked this building, broke in the doors and windows and demolished the furniture.

The president was taken out by the back way and hurried to a place of security. A rumor that the president had died, although it was officially denied by the police, added to the excitement.

The trouble began while the labor union council was in session. The unemployed were holding a demonstration outside the building and sent delegates into the hall to lay their demands before the council. Immediately these were made known, the council broke up its session and fighting began.

FEW MINERS RETURNING TO OPENED BRITISH MINES

General Industrial Situation Chaotic Awaiting Test of Call for Strike.

LONDON, June 21.—Although some of the collieries have reopened and a considerable number of miners have reported for work there has been no general drift back to the mines.

Generally the industrial situation continues as chaotic as ever, awaiting the test of the miners' call for a general strike of unions threatened with wage reductions.

The miners' delegates who have gone back to their districts are urging the men not to break away from the federation, and to defer action until they know the results of the appeal to the other unions. Their endeavors in this direction appear to have been successful to a marked extent, for district reports show that large numbers of miners who were expected to return to work yesterday did not do so. The principal movements back to the mines took place in the Midlands, including Derbyshire, Nottinghamshire and Staffordshire, where the owners predict a gradual resumption of operations. Apparently, the Scotch, Welsh and north country miners are standing firm.

Mme. Nazimova, who for several years has confined her work to the film drama, is reported to be contemplating her return to the stage in a play in which all the characters are women.

THREE MEN MURDERED.

Policeman's Revolver, Seized From Holster, Used in One Slaying.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 21.—Seizing a revolver from the holster of a passing policeman, William Truitt, twenty-three years of age, ran a short distance away and fired three bullets into the body of George Gilmore, forty years old, a city fireman. He then walked back to the policeman and handed him the revolver with the remark, "Now you can take me," according to the officer's report. Gilmore died a short time later at a hospital.

The trouble arose, Truitt told the police, over derogatory remarks Gilmore is alleged to have made regarding girls working at a factory where Truitt's sister is employed.

Ernest Thomas, a planter of Lake Cormorant, Miss., died at a hospital late yesterday after an attack on him, according to police reports, by Henry Hill, a negro. Thomas' skull was crushed with a flatiron, and he received several knife wounds in the neck.

The third killing here was that of Henry Morris, a negro, by Odie Harris, white, following a quarrel, in which the negro had been charged with stealing some automobile parts. Harris has not been arrested.

The trouble arose, Truitt told the police, over derogatory remarks Gilmore is alleged to have made regarding girls working at a factory where Truitt's sister is employed.

Ernest Thomas, a planter of Lake Cormorant, Miss., died at a hospital late yesterday after an attack on him, according to police reports, by Henry Hill, a negro. Thomas' skull was crushed with a flatiron, and he received several knife wounds in the neck.

The third killing here was that of Henry Morris, a negro, by Odie Harris, white, following a quarrel, in which the negro had been charged with stealing some automobile parts. Harris has not been arrested.

Safe and Sane Middle Course.

We are warned with Icarus neither to fly too high, nor too low; not too near the sun, and not too near the sea.

We are warned with Ulysses not to sail to the extreme right, striking

Seylla, nor to the extreme left, to be sucked into Charybdis. The sages, modern as well as ancient, advise the safe and sane middle course. In the spirit of this admonition, applying it to the relations of the United States with other nations, Charles Evans

Hughes has said: "There is a middle ground between aloofness and injurious commitments."

Obviously, the President and his Secretary of State are steering the ship of state along this middle course.

What are the extremes which this course avoids?

On the one hand: Unnecessary and un-American surrenders of sovereignty and hurtful commitment of nation to participate at the will of others in future wars, including wars to prevent war.

On the other hand: Desertion of our associates in war-making in the final stage of shaping and enforcing the terms of the just and enduring peace which ends the war.

Every inch of the path into European and Asiatic responsibilities, burdens and dangers which Uncle Sam is invited to tread is being microscopically examined as to its necessity, as to its benefit and as to its peril. Every step to be taken by Uncle Sam away from full protection in accordance with traditional policies of vital American interests is being minutely and jealously inspected.

How far along this path must Uncle

Sam proceed to avoid being a quitter?

At what point must he come to a halt in order to avoid being imposed upon as a "sucker"?

One distinct line of demarcation noted is that which divides our obligations springing out of this war and those alleged to have been incurred in respect to future wars.

"The fine impulse which carried the United States into the war with Germany will not be spent until the purposes for which the war was fought,

and for which supreme sacrifices have been made, and which are to be crystallized, even though imperfectly, in a final treaty of peace, have been attained. Congress declared war against

Germany, and under this original impulse we shall not falter in carrying to its logical end the present war. Our reservations and protests will not renege any obligations arising inevitably from the war now ending.

We shall, however, reserve our free will as to the making of future wars,

even if these future wars are decreed by a "world" league and are designed to enforce peace. Our conceded obligations pertain to the present war and its aftermath and do not, without distinct and voluntary renewal by the nation, carry over into the next war, whatever its character and whenever it may occur.

In meeting this war's obligations we reserve, moreover, the right to define the scope of these obligations and to determine the methods by which they shall be met.

For example, the nation has deliberately, formally, in accordance with the constitutional requirements, republicated the league of nations under the Versailles covenant.

Our executive representative at Paris, in performing his part of the treaty-making and war-ending function, made for the nation certain promises conditioned on approval by the co-ordinate authority in treaty-making of two-thirds of the Senate.

The league of nations, as proposed in the Versailles treaty, and that treaty itself, so far as the league of nations is inseparably interwoven in it as an integral and vital part, have been disapproved by the Senate and in a national referendum by the vote of the people of the United States. In order constitutional fashion the nation has withheld its approval from these particular tentative conditional promises and they fall to the ground.

The nation will not sacrifice or endanger vital American principles and policies in order to participate in a division of victors' "spoils," in which we neither ask nor get any of the

"spoils," in which we are invited to guarantee title and possession of

"spoils" to the other powers and in which we are to be compensated for our sacrifices by incurring the universal ill-will which attaches to the just umple.

On the other hand, we shall not,

except under absolutely unavoidable compulsion, make a distinctively separate peace treaty with Germany remediating utterly the treaty which,

with our associates, we have helped to make in ending the war which we have helped to win.

The world league of nations is now separated, so far as America is concerned, from the Versailles agreement,

but the obligation remains to share with our allies or associates in the treaty ending this war and in enforce-ing its terms.

It is conceivable that our allies or associates may prevent our fulfilling this obligation by holding to a peace treaty with Germany which retains enough of the hurtful and obnoxious features of the Versailles pact to prevent approval by the United States in the manner provided by the Constitution.

But we should make every effort to agree with our war associates upon the terms of a treaty quickly ending the war with Germany by imposing upon that nation a victors' peace which will prevent for many years

resumption of a war of conquest by

Germany, and we should perform our part faithfully and as long as the necessity exists in enforcing the terms of this treaty.

Thus the administration, avoiding extremes, in shunning the rock Scylla of the Versailles league of nations, will not permit itself to be engulfed in the whirlpool Charybdis, of unconditional reputation of the entire Versailles treaty.

Uncle Sam cannot, for example, agree to the league of nations item of the Shantung item of the Versailles treaty; but if those and any other hurtful and obnoxious provisions may be omitted the exurgated Versailles treaty is the natural word agreement to end this war with a just and enduring peace. Such a peace can be secured only by the association and agreement of the United States and of the allied nations in the world war.

For this purpose a separate peace treaty between the United States and Germany will not suffice.

The Federation Fight.

Next Saturday the American Federation of Labor, now in convention at Denver, will ballot for president of that organization. Samuel Gompers, its first president and continuously occupying that office since 1894, is a candidate for re-election. Annually for several years opposition to him has developed, but at the conventions it has disappeared, with the result of his regular re-election. This year the opposition has become more pronounced, and now John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, has announced his candidacy. Mr. Gompers has stated that his name will stand before the convention to the end of the balloting. The election takes place next Saturday. During these next few days the meeting at Denver will be marked by the most active campaigning that has been known in this organization in many years.

The fight at Denver is, broadly, between the conservative and the radical forces in organized labor. Lewis represents an element that regards the strike as the first and chief weapon of labor. Gompers, though an advocate of the strike as a last resort, is by comparison moderate in his attitude.

There is also involved in this contest

an international element. Behind

Lewis are those who would have the federation declare itself strongly in behalf of Ireland and institute a boycott of British products. With these

Gompers has no sympathy, and his supporters include, apart from domestic labor questions, those who feel that it is not the business of the federation to mix into political matters or take part in international controversies.

Dispatches from Denver indicate that despite the great strength of

Lewis' own organization and affiliations attributed as friendly to him,

Gompers at present commands the support of a majority of the delegates at the convention. The voting is to be by representation. That is to say, a few hundred men will cast several thousand votes, in ratio to their organization memberships. For instance, the miners are entitled to 4,257 votes in the convention, and these, it is claimed by Lewis' supporters, will be thrown to him solidly, though some doubt has been cast upon the unanimity of the miners. Lewis' lieutenants are asserting that he is assured of at least 20,000 votes, and that his announcement as a candidate is, therefore, tantamount to his election. Equal confidence is expressed by Gompers'

friends.

The public generally takes but little interest in the outcome of this fight as it affects the individuals involved. But there is much concern over the outcome on the score of possible change of policy on the part of the American Federation of Labor. If that organization is turned into radical lines it may prove a decidedly harmful influence in the American industrial situation.

CHILL BORA BLASTS HANDICAP CROATIA

Proposed Peasant Congress Interests Immigrants Who Came to United States.

"A brief cable item concerning a proposed peasant congress in Croatia may seem remote to many Americans, but it is home news for some hundreds of thousands of Croatians and their kin in the United States," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Before the world war the emigration stream from Croatia flowed from Plume and Trieste as constantly as the water trickles through and under the limestone plateau of the Karst region, a noteworthy physical feature of Croatia. It is because parts of Croatia are barren of soil that the indigenous human product had to transplant itself to distant lands."

Bora Symbolizes History.

"Another physical feature of Croatia is the bora, a violent northeast wind that sweeps down the Adriatic coast from the back country plateau, seems symbolical of the country's history. It has been said that Croatia was to Hungary what Hungary was to the fallen dual empire. For centuries Croatia struggled to throw off the yoke of the Magyar domination. One should not conclude that Croatia is barren or desolate. To the northwest is the majestic range which gives to the region the nickname of 'Croatian Switzerland.' The plum brandy, Slavic, is famous. The fertile orchards of Slavonia. For the full title of the present component part of Yugoslavia which was a crown land of Hungary is Croatia and Slavonia, having an area twice that of Massachusetts and two-thirds the population of the Bay State."

"Though Croatia and Slavonia is rich in agricultural land and has vineyards, pastures and forests, lack of capital has handicapped commerce and industry. Indeed, its southwest, rich in forests and grazing land and accessible to the sea, is accounted one of the least developed regions economically in Europe. The chilling blasts of the bora have something to do with the sparse population and backwardness of this region."

Wine Cheaper Than Water.

"Wine is cheaper than water in some sections. A curious by-product of the vineyards is the 'grape cure' at Zombor, a sanitarium where the chief prescription is a stipulated ration of the variety of grapes held to be beneficial for the ailment under treatment. Croatia's chief city, center of her politics and culture, is Zagreb, formerly known better by its German name, Agram. Here is a modern, busy city, with art collections, a university, and proportionately as many statues, it would seem, as Washington. For a thousand persons to gather here in a week on route for a port to set sail for America was no uncommon event in pre-war times."

Each Town Has Costume.

"The rural life of Croatia, with an almost patriarchal or family order of life, naturally betrays customs and costumes of remote generations. As one writer to the National Geographic Society put it: 'In Croatia, every village and hamlet has its own costume. So one who knows the countryside can tell at once the girl from Sissek from the vineyard lassie of Zombor, and she can tell you who has come from Ogulin, where the moss grows heavy on the roofs, held who makes her home beside the Plitvica lakes, the summer resort of all Croatia.'"

"A handkerchief, not a ring, is the engagement present of a Croatian swain to his lady love. If he finds

WINS PRIZE IN HEALTH CONTEST.

DOROTHY BAKER. Pupil in the fourth grade at the Thompson School, who received a prize of $5 at exercises at the school recently for observing health rules which she followed.

favor in her eyes she acknowledges his gift with an apple. Marriage is the Croatian girl's long contemplated aim. At seven or eight years she begins looking for a husband. She decides that the bride must bring enough stockings to last both her and her husband for the rest of their lives."

PRESIDENT APPROVES.

$300,000,000 Claims on Ship

Board Go to Arbitrators.

Suggestion of the Shipping Board that settlement of about $300,000,000 in claims against the board be placed in the hands of three arbitrators has been approved by President Harding, it was announced last night by the Shipping Board. Herebefore the board has acted in the ca-capacity of both defendant and judge in the matter of claims, Chairman Lasker explained. Most of the claims have resulted from cancellation of contracts by the board, one of them being for $20,000,000 and the others ranging from $8,000,000 downward. Some of them were plainly too high, the chairman said, adding that delayed settlement had caused them to mount. Members of the arbitration board would consist of a lawyer, an auditor and a technical man, all "of national standing and reputation."

Mr. Lasker also announced that the agreement of the Hamburg-American line with the Harriman interests to reopen the trade routes formerly controlled by Germany has the approval of the individual members of the board.

YALE PRESIDENT SAYS FAREWELL TO ALUMNI

Arthur T. Hadley, Who Retires After 22 Years' Service, Lauds His Successor.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 21.—President Arthur T. Hadley, who will retire as president of Yale University after twenty-two years in that office, today took formal leave of the alumni body. This was Alumni day, and the morning gathering in Battell chapel was the largest in many years.

President Hadley said: "We come back, representatives of four administrations to greet the dawn of a fifth. Tomorrow we shall acclaim as president James Rowland Angell, the man whose knowledge and vision have marked him out as the leader under whom Yale may face with confidence the problems which confront her, and look forward to a future which shall mean even more to her past to us and to the world."

He said the year 1919-20 had been a hard one for the colleges of the country, adding that the "attempted control of student conduct by the War Department in the autumn of 1918 was not well planned and was responsible for a great deal of demoralization. Fortunately the recovery has been prompt—much more so at Yale than at most colleges or universities."

CAMP EUSTIS BILL BLOCKED.

Action by the House on a bill to repeal legislation authorizing the abandonment of Camp Eustis, Virginia, was blocked yesterday by Representative Stafford, republican, Wisconsin, who objected to the consideration of the measure. Representative McKensie, republican, of Illinois, a member of the military committee, explained the camp was needed for development of railway artillery. Mr. Stafford contended the House should have more detailed information as to the views of the War Department on continuance of activities at the camp.

X-Ray Blouse and Short Sleeves Get Woman in Zion Jail

By the Associated Press.

ZION, Ill., June 21.—Mrs. Sarah Johnson, twenty-one, of Waltham, near Zion, was in Zion jail yesterday charged with triple violation of Oversee Wilbur Glens Voliva's modest dress ordinance. Mrs. Johnson was arrested as she stepped from a train by Chief of Police Becker and booked on the following counts: Wearing short sleeves which exposed the arm above the middle of the forearm. Wearing a blouse of transparent material. Wearing a blouse with neck out below the junction of the base of the neck and the collarbone.

Chief Becker made the arrest after the young woman told him: "When you pay for my clothes you can tell me what to wear." Her trial was set for today.

ASSURES OIL MEN.

Secretary Hughes Asks Brief in Mexican Case.

Secretary Hughes assured the group of American oil operators who protested to him yesterday against the recent increase in taxes on petroleum exported from Mexico that he would give the subject careful consideration. He asked them to submit for his consideration their assertions and their arguments in the form of a brief. He told them the brief would be studied carefully, and was said to have added that if the department should consider it necessary, action would be taken. The contention of the operators is that the action of President Obregon in raising the export taxes was unconstitutional and confiscatory.

COST OF MUSIC WEEK.

Committee Reports Expense About $5,000; Receipts, $2,100.

A meeting of the music week executive committee was held yesterday afternoon at the Franklin building to consider the question of finances. James T. Lloyd presided. A report from the finance committee stated that the total expense for the week and preliminary organization activities had been approximately $5,000, while the receipts to date, comprising contributions by local music dealers and a few individual subscriptions in response to letters of request sent out by the committee, have been about $2,100, thus leaving a deficit of nearly $3,000. The expenses were mainly for printing 50,000 official programs and the song sheets used in the community sings and by the children at the Ellipse serenade to the President.

Discussion was had as to ways and means of meeting the deficit, and it was decided to resolve the executive committee into a general finance committee to raise the funds by subscription.

A subcommittee was named to arrange a great musical patriotic rally the evening of July 4 at Central High School stadium, with several bands in attendance and a series of historical tableaux.

43 STUDENTS GRADUATE.

Columbia Junior High Hears Three Speakers.

Functions of the junior high school were outlined by Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools, at commencement exercises at the Columbia Junior High School this afternoon. Certificates were awarded to forty-two graduates. Addresses also were made by Daniel A. Edwards and Mrs. Howard L. Hodes, members of the board of education. Mr. Edwards' subject was "Why Junior High School Pupils Should Go to Senior High School." Mrs. Hodes spoke on "The Columbia Junior High School." Music was furnished by the school orchestra.

MISS ALICE PRESIDES.

Wields Gavel in House—First Time Woman Acts.

For the first time in history, according to official records, a woman presided over the House of Representatives yesterday. Miss Alice Robertson, a republican member from Oklahoma, occupied the chair for about ten minutes.

She was greeted with applause and cheers when Representative Walsh, republican, Massachusetts, who was presiding in the absence from Washington of Speaker Gillett, invited her to wield the gavel.

The roll was being called at the time on a resolution providing for the creation of a commission to represent the United States at the Peruvian centennial celebration. Somewhat embarrassed, but in a clear voice Miss Robertson announced the vote and relinquished the chair before any member had occasion to address her a "Miss Speaker."

TRADE WITH RUSSIA REALLY BEGINNING

Ships for Soviet Seaports Leave Stockholm—Lenin Takes Hand to Aid.

By HAL O'FLAHERTY.

By Cable to The Star and Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1921.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 20.—Trade with Russia, that magnet which has drawn business men from every part of the world to the seaports near the borders of Russia, is now actually under way.

Nearly two years have elapsed since M. Litvinov first opened his parleys with Capt. J. M. G. P. to bring about the commercial relations which are now just showing signs of life. Heavy freights are moving eastward; involving real money, and not shyster paper, and cargoes of hides, flax and hemp are arriving in German and Danish ports, and space is being chartered to carry forthcoming shipments from Copenhagen and Stettin.

Boats Leave Stockholm. Two boats loaded with material for Russia have left Stockholm. One carried 200 tons of lead and telephone material, and the other carried 135 tons, consisting of lead, scales, metal sheets and motors. These cargoes alone are estimated to be worth nearly $1,000,000 kroner (normally $268,000). The heaviest shipments for Russia are leaving German ports, where, owing to the shortage of boats, the German use steel barges, towed by small tugs.

Although the shipments from Russia are still insignificant, many signs point to unusual activity in Moscow. The Russian economic council has requested the former owners of big wool factories in Kuprianov and Jalgia to resume charge, with the right to dismiss the workmen now employed and wages to be determined. Offers have been made to other manufacturers.

Foreseeing the necessity of closer commercial communication with the western powers, Lenin has ordered that, beginning immediately, telegraphic communication be established with all the border states and that regular commercial traffic be resumed. The Russian government is endeavoring to get back into the Russian factories they will begin ordering raw materials which, it is believed, will react immediately upon buying in Scandinavia and Germany.

Grant Still Prevails.

These indications of a revival of trade with Russia are pleasant to the men who have been waiting patiently in every Baltic port for more than two years. Those, however, who hoped the Russian business never would go back to the old days, are sorely disappointed. Practically every deal put through for the Soviet government has been done through half a dozen intermediaries, all of whom must be "greased."

Just at present Reval is the center for Russian business. Dozens of middlemen are engaged there in opening bids for all kinds of products, but no offer finds favor unless it goes through the proper channel, with accompanying agreements for commissions. The most interesting American and British houses estimate that 15 per cent of the total amount paid on every sale goes to the brokers.

Briefly, Russian business is done on the same old plan, with all palms turned up for a share of the profits. To the credit of the Soviet leaders, it can be said that they are doing everything possible to rid themselves of the evil, but they cannot change the Russian temperament. They recalled two members of the trade commission in Reval, one of whom paid the death penalty on crossing the frontier, and the other is in jail, along with several Estonian businessmen who became involved in graft.

The opinion of the Russian trade commissioners in Sweden and Denmark indicated that they have profited by their opportunities.

WM. E. MASON BURIED.

Hundreds Pay Tribute to Late Representative in Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Funeral services for Congressman William E. Mason, who died in Washington Thursday, were held yesterday at the Third Unitarian Church. Hundreds of friends and political associates accompanied the body to the church. Among the guests were those who covered the coffin were flowers from President and Mrs. Harding and from many members of the cabinet. Burial was at Waukegan, Ill.

Regret over the death of Representative Mason of Illinois is expressed in a cablegram received by Speaker Gillett from President Barco of the Porto Rican senate. The message referred to Mr. Mason as "Porto Rico's great friend."

PLANTATION RIOT DENIED.

No Disorders Occurred on Cuban Estates, Manager Declares.

HAVANA, June 18.—Unreserved denial that disorders of any kind, much less deaths, had occurred at the Puro sugar estate near Calabazal, Sagua when Jamaican laborers had failed to collect wages due them was made today by Delmar Tommaso, general manager of the interests of the One family, owners of the Puro Central. In a statement caused by publication of a report originating in Kingston, Jamaica, that five deaths had resulted in disorders at the Puro Central, Mr. Tommaso asserted that the mill had been grinding this year's crop on June 9 and that there had been no trouble with plantation workers.

TENNIS PLAYER IN COURT.

Nathaniel W. Niles' Firm Is Accused of Larceny From Customer.

LAWRENCE, Mass., June 21.—Nathaniel W. Niles of Boston, the tennis player, a member of the firm of Earnest B. Smith & Co. brokers, jointly charged in an indictment with larceny from a customer, was formally held in $10,000 bail in the superior court yesterday.

It is alleged that the firm accepted $10,000 for investment, knowing that the firm was going into bankruptcy, and, instead of investing it, used it for other purposes.

SOLDIER BONUS UPHELD.

New York Supreme Court Rules State Act Constitutional.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 21.—The constitutionality of the state soldier bonus act was upheld yesterday by the appellate division of the supreme court, third judicial department. After hearing arguments, the court unanimously entered judgment for the state for $25,000 against the Westchester National Bank of Peekskill to compel it to pay for $25,000 of soldier bonus bonds for which it was a bidder.

The decision was rendered, it was stated, "upon the facts contained in the submission of the controversy." Leave to appeal to the court of appeals was granted, and the constitutionality of the bonus ultimately will be decided by that tribunal.

VERA CRUZ SHIP STRIKE ENDS WITH AGREEMENT

Workers Accept Proposal to Resume Work Under Old Contract for Three Months.

VERA CRUZ, June 20.—Marine workers, who have been on strike here, have reached an agreement with the Mexican Navigation Company to resume work under the old contract for three months. Before the expiration of this time it is expected a new wage scale, embodying a compromise between the demands of the union and the terms of the employing companies, will be perfected. The agreement includes a stipulation that all strikebreakers employed during the strike will be replaced immediately by union men. The conflict arose over the annual wage contracts between the company and the union, the latter insisting that these contracts be replaced by a system of individual understandings. So serious did the situation become that a delegation went to Mexico City to see President Obregon and Gen. Calles, secretary of the interior. It was upon the initiative of these officials that the tentative agreement was reported.

COL. FOLTZ RELIEVED.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 21.—Col. Frederick S. Foltz was officially relieved of duty as colonel of the United States Cavalry and commandant of Fort Oglethorpe yesterday. He is succeeded in command by Col. Robert R. Warsh, senior officer in command of the regiment.

The order which was received by the colonel is as follows: "June 17, War Department. 'Col. Frederick S. Foltz, 6th Cavalry, is relieved from assignment to that regiment, and from further assignment and duty at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and will report by telegraph to the commanding general, 4th Corps Area, Fort Monmouth, N. J., for assignment to duty.'"

"By order of Secretary of War." Secretary Weeks ordered Col. Foltz removed for alleged mistreatment of a military prisoner, Private George P. Rhodes charging he had been shackled in chains and was not returned from an absence without leave that his legs became swollen.

KIN OF JOHN JAY DEAD.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 21.—Miss Alice Jay, daughter of John Jay, first Chief Justice of the United States, died here, aged seventy-six years.

U. S. STEAMER RELOADED.

MADEIRA, June 20.—The steamship Providence, which left Philadelphia June 5 for Mediterranean ports, ran aground in the harbor here, but was refloated today.

MME. CURIE HONORED.

Given Only Honorary Degree Ever Awarded by Wellesley.

WELLESLEY, Mass., June 21.—Mme. Marie Curie, co-discoverer of radium, received the degree of doctor of science, the only honorary degree ever conferred by Wellesley College, at the commencement exercises yesterday. Degrees in course were awarded to 355 graduates.

The orator of the day was Gutson

Borglum, the sculptor. Discussing the large national interests of the American woman of today, he urged woman voters to hold aloof from partisan commitments.

"If the women divide up with the men and vote as the parties have been voting," he said, "there will be but one result—the printer's bill for ballots. Even as a minority, your power can determine the course of government for good if you remain free."

The Billings prize for excellence in music was awarded Mary V. French of Hutchinson, Kan., and the Erasmus history prize was won by Ada H. Haeseler of Philadelphia.

FOUR ARE EXECUTED.

Pay Penalty by Electrocuting for Pennsylvania Murder.

BELLFONTE, Pa., June 21.—Four men were electrocuted in the western penitentiary at Rockview yesterday for the murder of Saima Florian at Erie, Pa., last September. They were Milton Hudson, Robert Trammell, William Stragin, negroes, and Steve Schlop, a foreigner.

It was the first time in many years four men paid the death penalty in Pennsylvania for the same crime.

Women's New Summer Dresses

Foretell the vogue of dotted swisses, voiles, organdies and linens in a charming collection

$20 to $35

On every side one sees new modes which glimpse a summer of exquisite colors and delightful fashions.

In the illustrations, which are indicative of the collection, we see a—Lovely dress of pale pink voile, beautiful with drawnwork and bands of flet lace, and narrow sash of black grosgrain ribbon; many models similar to this are entirely handmade.

How two materials combine into a charming whole is pictured in the pleated dress of pink linen, with front and back panels of embroidered voile.

A navy blue and white figured voile is worn in overskirt effect over an underdress of dark blue voile, and relieved by a collar of embroidered white organdy; while open blue linen is distinctive with embroidered voile inserts, lace trimmed vest and many white crocheted buttons.

Organdies and dotted swisses, in both dark and light summery colors, are seen, and with widely varied assortments and interesting pricings nothing is lacking to make selection easily successful.

Frauleins Will Weep and Wail When 'Rich' Yanks Leave Coblenz

BY MIRIAM TEICHNER.

COBLENZ, June 1.—The small maid, Kitty, who takes care of my room in the Hotel Zum Traube on Rhinestrasse, in Coblenz, brought the requested bottle of ink, and then stood, reluctant to go. Obviously, she wanted to ask for something. It took some time for the question to be formulated—she assured me that she preferred to speak English—but when it finally came it was this: Did the American lady know how long it would take for a letter to come to Coblenz from the military prison at Fort Leavenworth?

Kitty, it developed, had had an American sweetheart, and he had been in trouble, and had been sent back to prison in the United States, and she had not had a letter for four months. It was not, the American lady was to understand, that Kitty's sweetheart had been to blame. He had had bad companions and had done whatever he was being punished for. Kitty was rather hazy as to what it was—not knowing it was wrong. Kitty says that she does not go out Sundays because she has no sweetheart and no nice clothes. She earns 125 marks a month as a chambermaid.

U. S. Soldier a Rich Man.

"Kitty is one of the unlucky girls—'frawlens,' the soldiers call them—of Coblenz. The lucky ones have sweethearts who stay, who take them to restaurants and buy them good meals, and sometimes, they provide them with pretty things to wear. For to the lucky girls of Coblenz the American flag means a lot. It means a dollar (and more) a day—a dollar is worth more than 60 marks—is a rich man. He is in a position to spend money, and spend it he does. There are girls in Coblenz who are plumper and better fed now than they were for several years before the American forces came from Trier and planted their flag on the summit of the heretofore impenetrable fortress of Ehrenbreitstein, just across the Rhine.

A soldier, who was at one time in the censor's office, says that he read in the letter of one prominent German citizen, just after the Americans came: 'I looked up to Ehrenbreitstein this afternoon and saw the American flag there. I was homesick and all afternoon I was very sick.' But in spite of the emotions of the prominent citizen, if the American flag were to be lowered from Ehrenbreitstein tomorrow and the American troops were to march out of the city, there would be more sorrowing than rejoicing in Coblenz. The patriots would rejoice, but the girls and the restaurant men and the storekeepers would mourn and be exceedingly sad.

Sammies Trig and Smart.

The American occupation has meant romance to the girls of Coblenz, and good food, plenty of it, and the combination is sweet. The American soldier in Germany is, in fact, a soldier to the eyes of any girl of any nationality. He is trig and of an unprecedented smartness. For one thing, he has discarded, almost universally, the fuzzy, ill-cut government issue uniform with which he departed from the states. German tailors, with German enterprise, put out what the soldiers call a "snappy" serge uniform for 2,000 marks, or a little over. The quartermaster's tailor shop, with German labor, cheap at the American exchange rate, puts out a slightly less snappy, but still remarkably smart, apparel at $25. So the soldier who used to sloosh in a bewhiskered issue uniform of fuzzy, ill-fitting material, now strides sprightly with an air of confidence, tailoring well, and to the "frawlen" he is the beau ideal of the conquering hero.

In spite of hard and industrious grumbling, however, the American soldier in Germany is not inconsiderable to his advantages. He knows that the Americans, with their usual impeccable taste, have picked out one of the most beautiful spots on the Rhine for their occupation. He knows that he has more money to spend than the soldier of any other country in the world; he knows that, what with the Salvation Army activities—there is a Salvation Army hut, cuddled, with superb unconcern, in the very shadow of that frowning and impenetrable fortress of Ehrenbreitstein—he has vaudeville shows, and moving picture entertainments and theatrical productions and social diversions, and sports, to say nothing of religion, to his heart's content; he knows that, if he so desires, he may have the advantages of a thorough course in vocational training in whatever line he may happen to pick.

Illiterates Disappearing.

Peter A. Tulp, consultant in education, American forces in Germany, says that a year ago there were 300 illiterates—counting both that class of immigrant men who, educated in their own tongue, were still ignorant of English, and those who had never learned to read or write in any language. The instruction program of the present school year in June the American forces in Germany will have not one illiterate. The instruction program for all men classified as illiterates is compulsory.

Enrollment in vocational training classes is optional, subject to the approval of the commanding officer, but once a man is admitted to a course of instruction attendance is mandatory, just as at any other military duty. Among the optional courses is one in scientific farming at a thirty-acre farm a short distance from Coblenz. About fifty men take the instruction on this, where they learn animal husbandry in all its branches as well. The farm furnishes certificates of attendance, and American families who would otherwise have to struggle along, as the German babies do, on milk which is canned or meat and vegetables for the commissary and flowers for officers' wives.

And while some soldiers are studying in the schools furnished them by the American government, others are studying in the schools of the German language. The Kitties and Berthas and Fredas of the country. The American soldier, probably talks the world's most immoral German; he is utterly promiscuous with its genders, and uses the difficult and exacting "she," "he," or "it" of the German language with a sublime indifference and indiscrimination. But his "frawlen" talks English as he talks German, and the two together form a language which is weird as to syntax, but unparalleled for love-making.

And so the American boy here in Coblenz works and drills and studies and drinks and dances and makes love, and occasionally gets a very bloody nose in a battle which may be with German soldiers, who, in the hands of a group of his fellow soldiers, he grumbles about the military police, and he grumbles about his officers, but, on the whole, as he wanders down the narrow stone streets of Coblenz, or across the pontoon bridge which connects that town with Ehrenbreitstein, or along the banks of the Rhine, down a tunnel of German soldiers, he feels that his "frawlen" does—that the occupation of Germany is not at all a bad thing—especially now that it's summer.

HEALTH OF CHILDREN RESTORED AT THE I. V. N. S. COUNTRY HOME

Season at Grant Road Location Now Open. Many Infants Being Cared for—More Can Be Accommodated.

The Children's Country Home, on Grant road, which is this year under the supervision of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society, opened for the season last week. Convalescent, underweight and anemic children find in the airy home and shady grounds a happy release from the city.

Nourishing food, regular hours, wholesome play in the outdoors, all under the supervision of the two experienced graduate nurses, are helping to make the children more normal in every respect. Stress is laid on proper nutrition, the aim being to raise the child's resistance.

There is plenty of room for more children at the home, it was announced today. Application blanks may be obtained at the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society office, 1413 G street.

Weighted Each Week.

The children are weighed each week. In order to note their progress to normal weight, which is more or less indicative of the general state of health of the child.

Sleeping porches make possible that the children get fresh air twenty-four hours a day. Many forms of recreation are provided for the little ones, who range from three to eight years of age. There is a piano at the home, and music is a feature.

The home, which is open until September 15, "provides for the child, nourishing food, sunshine and fresh air for convalescent, anemic and underweight children," according to the announced purpose.

It is under the supervision of Miss Mary V. Ford, manager; Miss Sarah Shotts, supervisor, and Miss Gertrude H. Bowling, director of the society. Dr. James Moser makes the weekly medical inspection of the children.

A feature of the home is that children do not go for stated periods, such as two weeks, but remain at the home until their weight has been brought to normal, or other improvement noted in their physical well being.

Certificate Necessary.

No child is admitted to the home unless he has previously filed at the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society office a certificate signed by a physician signifying that the child is free from any sign of contagious disease.

The child must also have shown negative throat culture within a week of the admittance to the home. These certificates should be brought to the office the day before admittance to the home, so that arrangements may be made to have the child met at the home.

The length of the vacation will be regulated, as stated, by the requirements in individual cases. The minimum time allowed is two weeks, no child being accepted for less time than that.

Boys from three to eight years and girls from three to twelve years are eligible for admittance. Only white children are admitted to the home. About forty children can be accommodated.

Provision is made for the care of five mothers with infants, who will be allowed to visit the home.

FINDS NO SOLUTION OF DEATH MYSTERY

Coroner's Jury Unable to Establish Identity of Man Taken From River.

Mystery in the killing of the unidentified man whose body was taken from the river a short distance below the railroad bridge spanning the river from Potomac Park to Virginia the morning of June 8 has not been solved. Coroner Nevitt is inclined to believe the man was murdered, he said, although it is possible, but hardly probable, that he was killed by an automobile or railroad train.

Detectives Embrey and Thompson, who visited the scene of the finding of the body and helped to make search of the clothing for marks of identification, appeared before a coroner's jury at the morgue yesterday afternoon and said they had been unable to get the body identified.

What appeared to be the name, S. C. Hege, written in indelible ink on the collarband of the shirt, had promised to solve the question of identification. No such name appears in the city directories, and the name he found in directories of other cities at police headquarters.

Gives Result of Autopsy

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, who assisted at the autopsy performed on the body, told the jury that death was due to fractures of the skull, and not to drowning, there being no water in the lungs. Death occurred before the body was placed in the river, the jury being told.

The autopsy disclosed a compound fracture of the right side of the skull and a depressed fracture of the left side, resulting in shock and cerebral hemorrhage which caused death.

There was nothing in the appearance of the body to suggest the probability of the man being a victim of an automobile or railroad accident. Coroner Nevitt stated, the clothing being intact and the coat buttoned. The pockets of the clothing had not been disturbed, so far as they appeared at the time the body was found.

Jury Returns Verdict

In the absence of any definite testimony, the coroner's jury reported a verdict expressing an inability to solve the mystery. The body was buried in the city morgue several days ago, the superintendent of the morgue retaining bits of clothing, the laundry marks and a penknife as a combination of the man's identity.

Mr. Hannan, according to A. E. Holcomb, secretary of the association, is especially well equipped to talk on recent developments in taxation.

Ample opportunity for recreation will be afforded the delegates.

MAIL PLANE SAVES LIFE.

An air mail plane carried a physician across the bridgeless and flooded South Platte river at North Platte, Neb., recently, to save the life of a woman dying at a farmhouse two miles on the south side of the river, according to a report made to the Post Office Department. The pilot made the trip and returned in twenty-one minutes. The department has approved the trip.

Class Night Festivities Held by Prospective Graduates.

With a varied program of music and speeches, the graduating class of Eastern High School held its class night exercises last night in the auditorium of the school. Commencement exercises will be held tomorrow night.

Robert Lewis Davis, president of the graduating class, presided over the class night exercises. Julia Egan Higgins read the class history. Grace Welch and Gladys Marie Beifield gave the class prophecy. Ruth Easley Rives recited the class poem.

The address to the undergraduates was made by Houghton G. Clapp and Fred C. Herzog replied for the undergraduates. A duet was sung by Mary Elster and Olive E. Ramsey. The school orchestra played during the exercises, which were followed by dancing in the drill hall.

LANGUID WOMAN SMOKERS IN D. C.

HOTELS SPUR BILL ASKING FINES

A puff on a cigarette may cost Washington women $25, if a bill introduced by Representative Johnson, democrat, Mississippi, becomes a law. The measure provides that women who smoke in "public places" shall be fined $25 for the first offense and $100 for a second infraction.

A similar schedule of fines is proposed for proprietors of public places, which the bill enumerates as dining rooms, cafes, theaters, elevators, street cars and railway stations, who permit women to smoke on their premises.

Mr. Johnson said he had noticed too many women in Washington puffing languidly on cigarettes in hotel lobbies, roof gardens and cafes.

"Why, I was walking down the street the other day," he said, "and I saw a young lady take a cigarette out of the hand of the young man she was walking with and take a puff herself. You can go to any hotel in Washington, to public functions and to places after the show and see women smoking cigarettes."

"It is worse than whiskey. The girls at college learn to smoke and then go home and teach it to the other girls, so that smoking by women is constantly on the increase."

Mr. Johnson added that he had never smoked or chewed tobacco in his life.

She wrote Representative Briggs of Texas today, asking that the government help locate Joseph, who ought to see even New York in two years.

CONTROVERSY OVER NEW POST OFFICE

Merchants' Worry Baseless,
as Department Building
Is Assured.

MAY MOVE 11TH ST. OFFICE

Station at 12th and G Streets
May Replace It for Better Distribution.

Merchants in the vicinity of the Post Office Department building are quite satisfied with the coming establishment July 1 of a branch postal station in the big department building, it developed today.

Fear has been expressed by some that the agitation by merchants north of them for the retention of the 11th street postal station might induce postal officials to revoke the order establishing the branch in the department building.

Officials today were of the opinion that the branch in the Post Office Department building had come to stay and would not be changed, no matter what might be done in relation to the 11th street branch station, which under present orders, is to be abandoned July 1 when the branch station is put into the department building.

The whole question of the location of branches of the Washington city post office is in the hands of the Post Office Department, in the final analysis, decisions being made by the Postmaster General after he has received recommendations.

11th Street Office Not Considered.
The problem of the 11th street station, it is pointed out, has no particular relation at this time to the establishment of a station in the department building. It has long been desired to put a station in the department, it being felt by many that since the Washington city post office was moved out of the department building some ten years ago a branch station should be placed in the building.

Much unfavorable comment has been caused among visitors to the city over the fact that one could not buy a stamp at the headquarters of the post office service. Whether this thought is right or wrong, officials do not discuss; they took into consideration, however, the fact that it was widespread.

Accordingly, when the new administration came into effect, the first thing it did was to authorize the Washington city post office to place a branch postal station in the department building at 11th street and Pennsylvania avenue.

To Be Carrier Station.
This station is to be a carrier station, with letter carriers working directly from it instead of from the main city post office. These carriers will deliver to the territory north of the office.

It is pointed out that the problem of the present 11th street station might be solved by the later establishment of a station in a somewhat more centrally located place, in relation to territory north of the city post office. As was suggested yesterday, 12th and G streets is regarded by many as a better location for a postal station. As was suggested yesterday, 12th and G streets is regarded by many as a better location for a postal station.

The Post Office Department is thought to consider the placing of stations in regard to the total population to be served, and the needs of the postal service as well as the needs of the people to be served.

OFFERS FREE MARRIAGES.

Rev. Simon P. W. Drew Noting Church Anniversary.

The seventeenth anniversary of the founding of the Cosmopolitan Baptist Church and of the pastorate of Rev. Simon P. W. Drew are being jointly celebrated this week at the church, in a series of sermons by prominent ministers of the city. The exercises began with services Sunday, June 12, and will continue to June 30, when a "million-dollar wedding pageant" will take place. Dr. Drew will marry, on that date, free of charge, the first five couples who bring in marriage licenses.

Letters of congratulation from prominent citizens have been received by Dr. Drew.

SLOAN TAKES NEW POST.

James Sloan, who has been chief clerk of the executive force of the White House since Mr. Harding's inauguration, and who was a member of the secret service of the United States for more than fifteen years, was today appointed secretary to J. D. Lister, Jr., chairman of the newly organized Shipping Board. Mr. Sloan entered upon his new duties at noon today. Mr. Sloan is a native of Danville, Va. He served with much distinction as a secret service operative during the administrations of President Roosevelt and Taft. Immediately upon Mr. Harding's nomination at Chicago, Mr. Sloan, who had retired from service, offered his services to personally guard the nominee, which he did throughout the campaign.

UNKNOWN MAN DIES.

A man, apparently about thirty-five years old, whose appearance indicated he had been in bad health, was taken sick at Pennsylvania avenue and 7th street yesterday afternoon. He died at Casualty Hospital shortly afterward, and his body was taken to the morgue. Two penknives, tobacco and a pipe were in his pockets. His shirt was initialed "H. S. S." Police today are trying to establish his identity.

GIRL, UNABLE TO SPEAK ENGLISH A YEAR AGO, WINS SCHOOL HONORS

Special Dispatch to The Star.

HYATTSVILLE, Md., June 21.—Unable to speak a word of English, Miss Helen Chase, fifteen-year-old adopted daughter of Mrs. Rachel Waldman, mother of Dr. Jacob Waldman, a local druggist, arrived in this country less than a year ago. Despite this, she has just finished the freshman year at the Hyattsville High School with a general average in studies for the year of 95 per cent, the third highest mark made in the school during the year. During her short stay in this country she has learned to speak English fluently. In addition, she speaks German, Russian and French.

Not satisfied with her scholastic accomplishments, Miss Chase went in for sports at the school, and has developed into quite an adept basketball player. She was also a member during the year of the girls' basketball team, in which organization she also became quite proficient. She is among the most popular students at the school.

She was adopted when two years old by Mrs. Waldman, and, together with Mrs. Waldman, had many exciting experiences in war-torn Europe before coming to this country.

MEET TO CONSIDER FEDERAL POWER ACT

Manufacturers Assert Legislation Is Detrimental and Invades State Rights.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 21.—Manufacturers interested in the subject of water power, from the standpoint of the consumer, assembled here today for a conference called by the Water Power League of America to discuss the questions of power, power shortage, cost of fuel and amendments to be asked to the federal power act. The league hopes to induce private capital to invest in the enterprises of water power development to relieve power shortage and reduce the cost of power to the consumer.

Assails the Enactment.
The Water Power League assails the workings of the federal power act as "detrimental to water power development and as an invasion of state rights." It practically impossible for private enterprises to engage in these undertakings. The league also asserts that the federal act has taken away from the several states all their rights to interstate streams within their borders and has placed them in the hands of a federal power commission, which is composed of the Secretary of War as chairman, the secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of Agriculture. Also it is asserted that the act takes from the War Department the authority to regulate the waters of the United States and delegates these powers to the commission.

The assails of the Water Power League assert that there are on file at Washington today more than 200 applications for permits and licenses to develop water power. The league asserts that the power of these projects is estimated at more than 20,000,000, and if they were carried to completion it would require several billion dollars to finance them. League officials say that the act has caused the delay of these projects by the power commission, which has been hampered by rules and regulations promulgated by the power commission, which has been hampered by rules and regulations promulgated by the power commission.

Blocks the Financing.
The league declares that American financiers refuse to make an investment of hundreds of millions of dollars in projects which are made uncertain by the power act. The league asserts that the power act has caused the delay of these projects by the power commission, which has been hampered by rules and regulations promulgated by the power commission.

Seek to Expedite Development.
The league announces its determination to make an effort to break the deadlock in water power development in this country and bring about an immediate and general movement in the development of every ounce of hydro-electric energy in the country, to the end that waning fuel supplies may be conserved.

Theodore E. Burton, for years chairman of the rivers and harbors committee in Congress, is head of the advisory council of the Water Power League.

The officers of the league are: Charles H. Ingerson, president; Charles T. Root, first vice president; John H. Allen, second vice president, and Frederick L. Long, secretary.

JOHNSON BILL PASSED.

House Approves Admitting Aliens
Who Sailed June 8.

The Johnson bill to permit aliens who sailed on or before June 8 last to land at American ports was passed yesterday by the House. The measure was taken up by a vote of 171 to 70 under suspension of the rules.

The number which the measure would permit to enter the United States at this time is estimated at approximately 10,000. The bill now goes to the Senate.

WILL GIVE WARNING OF U. S. RESOURCES

Executive Committee Formed
Here to Educate Country and Disseminate Facts.

Organization has been effected of an executive committee on natural resources, following a meeting of committees from the National Academy of Sciences, the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the National Research Council.

It was announced today that the newly formed executive committee plans the appointment of a paid executive and necessary clerical force, with an office in this city.

The purpose of the committee is the promotion of scientific discovery and education for the most efficient and advantageous use of the natural resources of the United States.

An immense nation has been built up, but at the expense of a much larger consumption and loss of its resources than was necessary, it is stated.

Seeks to Maintain Supplies.
It seems, therefore, to be the most important duty of the scientific associations and organizations, as well as of the educational institutions of the country, to disseminate information and instruction as to the real condition of our natural resources.

It is pointed out that the danger of exhaustion lies, and in the light of the best scientific and practical knowledge now at our disposal, through new researches directed to this end, to teach the ways in which these resources may be maintained.

These great economic problems are so involved with industrial, financial and political questions that little scientific body without a long educational campaign. This will in time bear fruit, but the danger is that it will be required, the more important is an immediate beginning.

Exact scientific knowledge is the only guide in this large field, but even science cannot take care of industrial waste. Such correction cannot be made only by an enlightened moral sense.

Immediate steps will be taken to secure the cooperation of as many as possible of the educational and scientific institutions of the country. The committee will not duplicate the work of any existing organization engaged in special work for the protection and best economic use of natural resources of any kind. Its purpose is to act in an advisory capacity to such organizations, to help them in securing better support.

The bill had previously been ordered favorably reported by the Senate District committee, and Senator Ball will file the favorable report tomorrow.

In a few particulars the bill amends the rent act in addition to extending its operation.

Buildings Exempted.
Garages, warehouses, any buildings or part of a building or land attached to a building used by the tenant exclusively for business purposes, "other than the subleasing or otherwise subletting of the building or land," are exempted from operation of the law after October 22, 1921.

The bill also authorizes the appointment of an attorney by the rent commission at a salary of $5,000 a year. The final decision of the bill provides: "That in all cases where the tenant has, prior to April 18, 1921, collected any excess rent or charge, he may return such excess to the tenant directly, and in default of his so doing, then upon application by the tenant to the commission a rule shall be issued against such owner and served in the same manner as other notices from the commission, requiring such owner to refund such excess to the tenant within ten days of such rule, and in default of such refund within the said ten days the commission shall proceed to recover double the amount of such excess, with cost and attorney's fees, as herein provided."

Senator Ball will seek to have favorable action upon the bill taken early date. He believes that it will pass promptly in view of the fact that the report of the District committee on the bill was practically unanimous.

The Senate District committee will meet tomorrow to consider street railway legislation.

SHOOTS UP TOWN FOR HOUR.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 21.—Three persons were wounded today when Frank Fisher, a farmer, held the main street of Oakland, thirty miles east of here, for an hour firing with a rifle at pedestrians and storekeepers. He was captured after he had used all his ammunition.

Fisher was released from a state hospital for the insane a year ago.

NEW BALL RENTS OPEN SHOP FIGHT BILL INTRODUCED IS WON BY LABOR

Senator's Measure Would Extend Present Law Until
May 22, 1922.

Senator Ball of Delaware, chairman of the District committee, today introduced a bill to extend until May 22, 1922, the operation of the Ball rent act. Unless this bill, amending the act, becomes a law, the rent act will expire October 22, 1921.

The bill had previously been ordered favorably reported by the Senate District committee, and Senator Ball will file the favorable report tomorrow.

KING AND QUEEN OFF FOR BELFAST

Given Remarkable Send-Off on Leaving London to Open Ulster Parliament.

KIDNAY EARL OF BANDON

Armed Men Raid His Home in County Cork—More Violent Deaths.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, June 21.—King George and Queen Mary were given a remarkable send-off at the railway station here today when they left for Holyhead on the way to Belfast to take part in the state opening of the Ulster parliament tomorrow.

A great crowd repeatedly cheered the king and queen as they saw the national anthem. At intervals there were shouts of "Good luck and a safe return to your majesties." The station was early decorated. The king and queen will embark at Holyhead on their trip across the Irish sea.

Special Safety Precautions.
The royal steamship will be escorted by two light cruisers and ten destroyers on its trip across the Irish sea.

Elaborate precautions are being taken by the police and crown forces in Belfast to insure the safety of the king and queen while they are in the city. The king and queen will be escorted by a large force of police and military forces for any purpose during the hours the king and queen are in Belfast. The king and queen will be escorted by a large force of police and military forces for any purpose during the hours the king and queen are in Belfast.

Face Round of Functions.
King George and Queen Mary will face a strenuous round of functions tomorrow in Belfast, for in addition to opening the parliament, they will be called upon to provide at a levee at Ulster Hall, where the king and queen will receive a number of prominent Irishmen.

Considerable interest has been aroused in this city by a rumor that the Irish Sinn Féin plans to make a protest of peace to King George at Ulster Hall, where the king and queen will receive a number of prominent Irishmen.

EARL OF BANDON KIDNAPED.
Armed Men Capture King's Lieutenant of County Cork.

CORK, June 21.—James Francis Bernard, fourth Earl of Bandon, was kidnapped this morning from his residence in Bantry, County Cork, by a band of armed men. Castle Bernard, his home, was set afire, and early this afternoon was still burning.

Earl Bandon's whereabouts are unknown.

Earl Bandon, who has been king's lieutenant of County Cork since 1874, was born September 12, 1850, and succeeded his father in the earldom in 1877. He is the owner of about 41,000 acres of land.

The earl was kidnapped at 5 o'clock this morning, after which the castle was set afire and virtually destroyed. Meanwhile, Lady Bandon and her servants had been locked in a room adjoining the stables.

EIGHT MEN SLAIN.
DUBLIN, June 21.—Second Lieut. Breeze of the Worcestershire regiment was taken from an automobile in which he was seated near Dublin, accompanied by three young women, and shot to death. The bodies of three military officers who were kidnapped yesterday while on walking near Fethard, County Tipperary, were found yesterday near Clonmel. A soldier was shot dead in Clonmel. At Rathcoomack, County Cork, two civilians who failed to halt when challenged were shot and killed.

Col. Lambert, commander of the brigade at Athlone, was fatally shot last evening at Moydrum while returning from a tennis party in an automobile accompanied by his wife and Col. and Mrs. Challoner.

TAX RETURNS AS EXPECTED.

Early reports on collections of the June 15 instalment of income and profits taxes indicate that the final results will bear out Secretary Mellon's estimate of $750,000,000. Treasury officials report that the outstanding delinquencies still to be heard from it was said the total amount accounted for was in the neighborhood of $500,000,000.

PLANS ONE POLICEMAN TO EACH 20 PERSONS TO MAKE RIVERDALE SAFE

Special Dispatch to The Star.

RIVERDALE, Md., June 21.—If the plans of Dr. S. S. McMillin, mayor of Riverdale, materialize this town is going to have a policeman to about every twenty persons. Aroused by recent brutal crimes in this section of Prince Georges county, he announces that he is determined to make Riverdale safe for women and children and the citizens generally. He has been given authority to name fifty bailiffs, and he says he intends to name that number.

Riverdale, according to a recent census, has 1,056 inhabitants. Nine bailiffs have already been appointed.

14TH STREET FIGHT STIRS TAKOMA, MD.

Highway Commission to Be Urged by Council to Favor Extension.

That extension of 14th street through the grounds of Walter Reed Hospital is vital to the continued growth of the residential section north of the hospital and just over the line in Maryland will be urged before the highway commission Thursday by the town council of Takoma Park, Md.

The council met last night and unanimously adopted a resolution in protest to the proposed closing of 14th street at the hospital reservation. It instructed the corporation counsel, J. Bond Smith, to present the resolution to the highway commission at Thursday's hearing on the "Kada" bill providing that all streets in the hospital reservation shall be closed.

Takoma Park is the largest town in Montgomery county and the fourteenth largest in the state. Many of its citizens are government workers. Because of extension on the Brightwood line, they are finding means of reaching their work in Washington are becoming increasingly difficult with the only relief in sight an extension of the car line on 14th street.

It was noted that a large representation of Maryland citizens at the hearing, as well as an extensive representation of District citizens' associations. The hearing, which will be presided over by the Secretary of War, will be held in the board room of the District building.

BLAMES ELECTRIC LINE. I. C. C. Decision Regarding Fatal Collision at Shipley, Md.

A side collision between an electric car and an automobile at Shipley, Md., on Wednesday, January 31, 1921, which resulted in the death of two and injury to five persons riding in the automobile, caused by a fault of the electric railway company to provide adequate protection at a dangerous crossing, the Interstate Commerce Commission has announced.

Several accidents have occurred at the crossing, the commission's announcement said, and bulletins have been issued requiring cars to be so operated that a collision would be impossible. Street cars, it added, would compel each car to make practically a full stop. The physical conditions surrounding the crossing warrant the use of a crossing flagman until rates or some other adequate protection are provided.

SEES TARIFF BILL SOON.
Mr. Mondell Predicts Permanent Measure About First of Month.

Pressed by democrats for definite information as to when the permanent tariff bill would be ready for the House, Representative Mondell, the Republican from Idaho, said yesterday it probably would be reported by the ways and means committee "about the first of the month."

AMUNDSEN'S SHIP IS SWEEP ASHORE

Arctic Explorer Tells of Ice
Packs, Which Made Him Abandon Trip.

One Propeller Lost and the Other
Was Smashed Ninety Miles
From Cape Serge.

By the Associated Press.

NOME, Alaska, June 20.—Masses of early arctic ice last August locked in a rigid grip the vessel Maude, on which Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the south pole, hoped to drift past the north pole, and a terrible storm swept the schooner ashore, ninety miles from Cape Serge, and smashed her propeller, he said here today.

Capt. Amundsen appeared in Nome last Friday with the tidings that his ship was disabled and he would have her towed to Seattle for repairs, later returning to the exploration.

"When I left Nome early last August," the explorer related, "I proceeded in the Maude, a twin screw vessel, where I was to pick up a native party to add to the crew, but the ice conditions were the worst in years, and we were forced to lay to for two weeks, during which time it was impossible to get away."

Ninety miles in three weeks. Capt. Amundsen explained that three weeks were required to cover the ninety miles between East Cape and Cape Serge. The Maude had lost one propeller going through the northeast passage in 1919 and was pushing ahead with her remaining propeller.

While working the vessel into Cape Serge a blinding blizzard swept the sea. We had all our anchors out, but the ice floes pushed everything ashore. We found the other propeller out of commission, but no other damage," he continued.

There was no chance of escape, he added. The schooner was frozen in the winter. Between January 31 and April 10 Dr. Sverdrup and Oscar Wisting, two of the Maude's company, ventured out into the arctic winter, and made an extensive magnetic survey of the interior country.

On May 27 Amundsen left the Maude and went to East Cape to await the ice. Capt. Amundsen said that he was the guest of Charles Carpendale, a gun trader.

Capt. Amundsen said natives on the Dromedaire Island, informed of his plight, had sent a messenger to the schooner Herman, who lost no time in going to his rescue. Capt. Amundsen told him natives at Prince of Wales Island were giving them food from the ship's stores. The trip to Nome was uneventful thereafter.

AMUSEMENTS

SHUBERT-GARRICK—"Adam and Eva."

It was a notable occasion at the Shubert-Garrick Theater last night, for it was the inauguration of the third season of a summer stock company at this playhouse. The elaborate floral display in the foyer, the no less profusion of floral offerings to the players, the address of appreciation by Manager Edwards, the enthusiastic reception of the performance by the large audience—all indicated an event of unusual interest in local theatrical circles. Manager Edwards has assembled a company that quickly established friendly relations with those in front of the footlights and presented a play that has been a metropolitan success. The applause was frequent and hearty. "Adam and Eva" was chosen to inaugurate the season, and was a happy selection. As will be recalled by those who saw it at another theater some months ago, it is an amusing story of the regeneration of a rich but extravagant family. Bert Brister, the part of Adam Smith, who brings about the reform, created a most favorable impression as the leading man of the company. Florence Evelyn Martin, in the role of Eva, was winsome and became a favorite at once. Douglas Dumble, the man of wealth was vigorous and convincing. Leah Winslow as his elder daughter, and Edna May Oliver as his sister-in-law, J. Arthur Young as his cousin and Hardie Meakin as Lord Andrew Gordon, who aspired to be his son-in-law, were all well cast, and contributed to a rounded performance. Constance Hope made the small part of the parlor maid a conspicuous success by her restraint and discretion. Edwin Trusheim would have been more convincing as the physician if he had been a little less of the stereotyped character of the doctor, and more of the young man. At the close of the second act, when the entire company was assembled on the stage, showered with flowers, Manager Edwards expressed his gratitude for the friendly reception given the players and promised that his efforts would be spared to make the summer stock season a pleasant one for local theatergoers.

NATIONAL—"The Scarlet Man."

"The Scarlet Man," a satirical comedy in four acts by William Le Baron, presented by Charles Dillingham, opened a week's engagement last night at the National Theater. The play is advertised as being one of the best of the season. The audience sat patiently through three acts last night, laughing at the appointed laughing spots and expectantly waiting for something new to develop in the last act. Then, when all seemed lost, the hero comes in and assures the audience it's all a joke, a satire, a pure farce, and not to be taken seriously, anyhow. Then things work out reasonably well.

KEITH'S—Vaudeville.

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne received a most enthusiastic welcome last night at Keith's, where they are playing this week in a sketch entitled "The Poor Rich Man." As both had attained great popularity as screen stars, there was unusual interest felt by many to see how they would appear on the stage. They were making their first appearance in this city and Bushman was naturally nervous over what his reception would be in his home town. However, he could complain, as on the first appearance of each there was hearty applause. As the sketch was a farce, it was a comedy of the type that is full of color and animation, their dresses being unusually rich and their acting pleasing. Pat and Julia Levoia have a unique wire act; Dave Roth made good in songs, dances and piano playing; Marshall Montgomery put on a ventriloquist act that scored; Brown and O'Donnell pleased with original patter and created lots of laughter; Miller and Mack were a hit with their rough fun making that is new to many; the Tuscano Brothers suggested battle-axes in thrilling style, and the Pathe pictures covered the news of the day.

COSMOS—Vaudeville.

To single out the headline attraction of the program of varied excellence at the Cosmos Theater this week would probably be doing a grave injustice to other offerings. Though "Mutt and Jeff," in "Taking a Chance," is listed as the feature, and is indeed a bright bit of musical comedy entertainment, it hardly surpasses Miss Verna Mercerau and her supporting company in "A Dream of Old Egypt," offering a series of modern and ancient dances, and the efforts of Lew Cooper, one of the funniest of blackface comedians seen at the popular playhouse in a long time. The bill has many other bright, vaudeville features, including Ray and Campbell, two pretty misses, who proved themselves artists in presenting their new songs and selections on the piano; Giddy and Giddy, two comedians, whose many acrobatic offerings were as difficult as they were funny, and "Reno," the hobo cyclist, whose act, though somewhat abbreviated, was very entertaining. With the eyes of the world focused on the coming international scrap, much interest was shown in "The Fight of the Age," a two-reel film showing intimate and humorous views of Dempsey and Carpentier in training and, in addition, an artist's conception of possible punches to be delivered between the champs together and what their effects might be. A photoplay, which found favor at all theaters last night, was "Seven Years' Bad Luck," having its first showing in Washington and featuring Max Linder, the international star, who returns to the screen in this picture after an absence of several years.

LITTLE STORIES for BEDTIME

The Little Prophet in the Tree

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

No privilege is quite so dear as passing on a word of cheer.

"Rain, rain, it is going to rain! Rain, rain, it is going to rain!"

Such a change as came over all these on the shore of the pond of Paddy the Beaver at the sound of that shrill voice! For a couple of minutes no one moved or spoke. Every head was turned in the direction from which that shrill voice came. In every face the look of dreadful fear gave place to one of hope.

Buster Bear was the first to move. He suddenly started on in a hurry in the direction of that shrill voice. Every one but Paddy the Beaver and Billy Mink and Little Joe Otter followed. They were content to remain in the water for all the little shrill voice. For they had the least cause to fear the Red Terror. They were even more at home in the water than on land, and they had known that the Red Terror could not reach them. So the glad news of that shrill voice meant less to them than to the others.

Buster Bear's twin, Boxer and Woof-Woof, followed close at Mother Bear's heels. They didn't understand what it all meant, for they had no idea whose voice it was; but somehow they felt less frightened. They saw that the others understood and were filled with hope, and so they felt better themselves.

They found Buster Bear standing up under a tree and looking up. From a branch a little above his head came that shrill cry: "Rain, rain, it is going to rain! Rain, rain, it is going to rain!"

"Are you sure of it?" asked Buster Bear. "Are you are trying to fool us? I'll climb up and shake you off that branch and that will be the end of you." Buster's voice was very deep and grumbly rumble.

"Rain, rain, it is going to rain!" was the reply, and somehow there was such a joyous note in that shrill voice that there could be no doubt that it meant what it said.

The twins started up at that branch with all their might, but they couldn't see anybody. It was just as if that shrill voice came from the branch itself. They stared and stared and stared, but nobody could they see. And still that voice continued to cry: "Rain, rain, it is going to rain!"

Then for a few minutes that voice was still. Suddenly the twins saw what had looked like a part of the branch come to life and make a flying leap to another branch, and at once that shrill voice repeated the glad news.

"Why—why—why, it is a little Frog!" exclaimed Boxer, rubbing his eyes to make sure that nothing was the matter with them. Who ever heard of a Frog in a tree?

"It is Stickytoes the Tree Toad," growled Mother Bear. "He really belongs to the Frog family, but he is commonly called a Toad, a Tree Toad. He ought to be called Tree Frog, for that is what he is. He lives in the trees."

Such a funny expression as there was on the faces of the twins when they heard this. They thought they knew all about Frogs, and had never seen a Frog more than two or three good jumps from water. How could a Frog be up in a tree? They couldn't understand it at all. They couldn't understand how a Frog could live in a tree any more than they could understand how he could know it was going to rain. They fairly wonder to ask questions.

But Buster was speaking again. "Are you sure, absolutely sure?" he asked.

"Sure, absolutely sure. Rain, rain, it is going to rain!" shrilled the funny little prophet in the tree.

LISTEN, WORLD!

BY ELSIE ROBINSON.

The more I learn about savages the more I am convinced that civilization is largely a question of wearing pants. It shouldn't be so, of course. Civilization should promote justice, honesty, charity, temperance and neighborliness. It should make us more glad to be alive and more helpful to the other fellow. It should smooth out and simplify life. But does it? On close analysis I fear it doesn't. It seems to have merely promoted—Pants.

There's a large misunderstanding about savages. Savages are not so much as violent, man-eating monsters, peevish at home and rambunctious abroad. Do you remember your thrills when you first heard of the Cannibal Isles? How glad you were that you had a look on the front door and ate only cow steak—instead of the human variety. Though you did wonder how that fat, cross old lady around the corner would taste.

But come to find out, that was all propaganda stuff. Some one was making the coy but kindly cannibal. At times he did eat his enemies to be sure, but on the other hand he never asked them nor foreclosed mortgages on the widows. Also he kept his word, was sober, chaste and just to his clan—until civilization came along. Barring an occasional stimulating scrap, uncomplicated by either police courts or lawyers, his life was spent in loving, laughing, dandling and other rural exercises. Nothing could have been more kindly or healthy. But—he didn't wear pants!

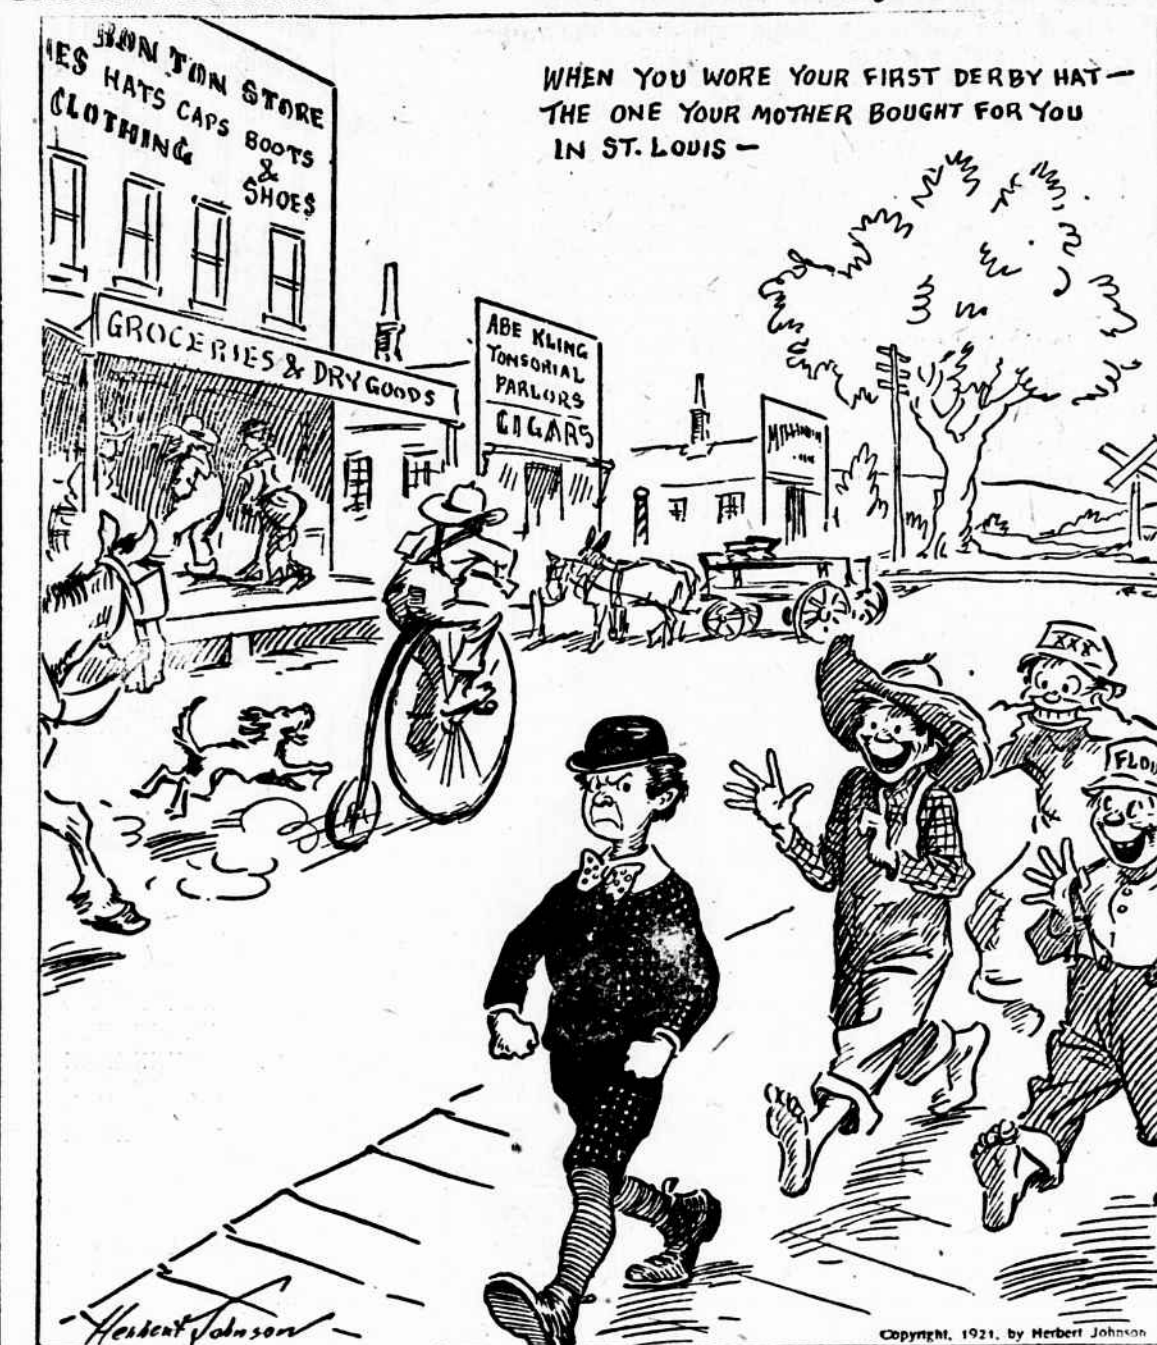

Well, we do. But otherwise—?

Civilization is largely a matter of wearing pants.

Critical Moments.

THE AVENGER

BY E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM.

A Tale of Political Intrigue and Private Revenge.

(Copyright, by Little, Brown & Co.)

"I am going to tell you more than may seem necessary," she said, "because I believe that I am one of those unfortunate persons whose evil lot it is to bring unhappiness upon their friends. So far as I can avoid this, Mr. Wrayson, I mean to. Further—it is possible that I may ask you presently to render me a service."

Wrayson bowed low. He felt that she was already well aware of his willingness.

"First, then, let me tell you," she continued, leaning back in her chair and looking across the valley with eyes whose light was wholly reminiscent of that of three school-girls together, Louise, Amy—whom you know better, perhaps, as the Baroness de Sturm—and myself. We were at a convent near Brussels. There were not many pupils, and we three were friends."

"We had a great deal of liberty—more liberty, perhaps, than our friends would have approved of. We worked, it is true, in the mornings, but in the afternoons we rode or played tennis in the Bois. It was there that I met Prince Frederick. I was only sixteen years old, and just as silly, I suppose, as a girl brought up as I had been brought up was certain to be. I was very much flattered by Prince Frederick's attentions, and quite ready to respond to them. My own family was noble, and the match was not considered a particularly unequal one. The royal house, he was of the royal house, he was a long way from the succession. Still, there was a good deal of trouble when a messenger from Frederick went to my father. He declared that I was altogether too young; my mother, on the other hand, was just as anxious to conclude the match. Eventually it was arranged that the betrothal should take place in six months—and Frederick went back to Mexico."

Mme. de Melbain paused for a moment. Wrayson felt, from her slightly altered attitude and a significant lowering of her voice, that she was reaching the part of her narrative which she found the most difficult.

"We girls," she continued, "went back to school, and just at that time Louise's brother came over to Brussels. I think that I have already told you that the supervision over us was far from strict. There was nothing to prevent Capt. Fitzmaurice being a good deal with us. We had picnics, tennis parties, rides! Long before the six months were up I understood how foolish I had been. I wrote to Prince Frederick and begged him to release me from our uncompleted engagement. His answer was to appear in person. He made a splendid mother and father were now wholly on his side. Within a few weeks he had both a cousin and a brother. His succession to the throne was almost a certainty. His own people were just as anxious to have him married. I did not know why then, but I found out later on. They had their way. I believe that things are different in an English home. In mine, I can assure you that I never had any chance. I entered upon my married life without the least possibility of happiness. Needless to say, I never realized any! For the last four years my husband has been trying for a divorce. Very soon it is possible that he will succeed."

Wrayson leaned a little toward her.

"It is permitted, madame, to ask a question?"

"Why not?"

"You have fought against this divorce, you and your friends, so zealously. Yet your life has been so happy. Release could scarcely have been anything but a relief to you!"

Mme. de Melbain raised her head slightly. Her brows were a little contracted. From her eyes there flashed the silent fire of a queen's disdain.

"Release! Yes, I would welcome that! If I were dead it would be very welcome! But divorce, that is another matter. It is the scandal of every court in Europe! No! A divorce I never shall accept. Separation I have insisted upon."

Wrayson hesitated for a moment.

"May I be pardoned?" he said, "if I repeat to you what I saw in print lately—in a famous English paper? They spoke of this divorce case which has lasted so long; they spoke of it as about to be finally decided. There was some fresh evidence about to be produced, a special case was to be held."

Mme. de Melbain turned, if possible, a paler.

"Yes," she said slowly, "I have heard of that. I want to tell you, Wrayson, what that fresh evidence consists of."

Wrayson bowed and waited. Some-tie Jew! For all I know, he deserved death a dozen times over—said Bentham, too! But the law does not look upon it like that. Whoever killed the men will assuredly be hanged if they are caught. Don't you think that your friends are a little too zealous?"

"If friends of mine have done these things," she said, "they are at least unknown to me."

He drew a short choking breath of relief. "Yet even now the mystery was deeper than ever. He began to think out loud."

"A friend of yours it must have been," he declared. "Barnes was murdered when in a few hours he would have parted with those letters to your enemies; Bentham was murdered when he was on the point of discovering them! There is some one working for you, guarding you, who desires to remain unknown. I wonder."

He stopped short. A sudden lightning idea flashed through his mind. He looked at Mme. de Melbain fixedly.

"This man Duncan who has disappeared suddenly," he said thickly, "Whom did you say—who was it that he reminded you of?"

Mme. de Melbain lost at last her composure. She was white to the lips, her eyes seemed suddenly lit with a horrible dread. She pushed out her hands as though to thrust it from her.

"He was killed!" she cried. "It was not he! He is dead! Don't dare to speak of anything so horrible!"

Then, before they could realize that he was actually amongst them, he was there. They heard only a crashing of boughs, the parting of the hedge. He was there on his knees, with his arms around the terrified woman who had sobbed out his name. Louise, too, swayed upon her feet, her fascinated eyes fixed upon the newcomer. Wrayson understood, then, that in some way this man had indeed come back from the dead.

Is Your Skin Fine?

There are very few complexions that can stand the test of close examination in brilliant sunlight. The sun's rays have been well called pitiless since they search out and show up the smallest flaw in one's complexion. The most common fault is enlarged pores, which are particularly prominent under a bright light. No amount of powder or cream can disguise them, since they search out and show up the smallest flaw in one's complexion.

They cannot be made fine if one's health is not fairly good and one's digestion in practically perfect condition. These physical details must be looked after intelligently. But for the rest of it absolute cleanliness is all that is required. However, an enormous amount can be done immediately toward reducing the pores by the proper use of astringents.

The general daily face treatment which I recommend will make any skin perfect if the digestion is good. Hold hot wet cloths over the face for about two minutes. This opens the pores and stimulates the skin. Rub in a quantity of cleanser cream after this, working it thoroughly into the skin. Then wash the face with hot water and a mild soap. If possible, scrub the skin with a small flesh brush. Rinse with hot water, cold water and rub the skin with a piece of ice.

If the skin is dry, rub in a tiny bit of cream before the cold rinse and the ice. The ice is invaluable because it shrinks up those enlarged pores and makes the skin smooth and fine in appearance.

Bakstone Cakes.

Sift together three cups of oatmeal and one cup of white flour with a teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, add three cups of scalding milk, two heaping tablespoonfuls of butter and one tablespoonful of sugar. Mix all the ingredients with a spoon until they form a soft dough, roll the dough into a thin sheet without touching it with your hands, cut it into cakes with a biscuit cutter and bake them for about fifteen minutes. Butter and serve them very hot. They should be brown underneath, but not darker than a pale yellow on top. These cakes are good to make when on an outing or camping, as they may be baked on heated bricks over a fire.

Scrambled Beef and Eggs.

Heat one tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan, add one-half pound of dried beef, let it cook for a minute or two and then add three eggs which have been slightly beaten. Scramble with a knife just as you scramble eggs, until the eggs are set, then serve hot with toasted bread.

McBride Plans to Send Southpaw Hurlers Against Athletics in Final Two Games of Series

MOGRIDGE BILLED TODAY; ZACH IS DUE TOMORROW

Lefthanders Successful as Double-Header Is Split, Moore Winning for Mackmen and Courtney for Nationals.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—Clark Griffith's theory about the relative effectiveness of southpaws vs. right-handed pitchers sounds good in view of what happened at Shibe Park yesterday, when Roy Moore obtained a 7-2 verdict over Acosta and Shaw, preceding the 4-2 decision Harry Courtney registered over Bob Hasty to give the Nationals an even break on the day. With an eye to further testing the system MoGrudge will be sent against the Mackmen this afternoon in preference to Al Schacht, provided George feels fit, and if not, he will get the call tomorrow, with Jerebel Tecumseh Zachary hurling the final of the set Thursday.

There is no natural reason for exceptional prowess of porters on the local grounds, according to the players, however, they claim that owing to the location of the score board its black and white spaces interfere with the batsman's vision when he is facing a forkhand. Moore is Mack's lone lefthander, aside from two youngsters, Helmach and Stappay, whose names appear in the Philadelphia roster, but never in a box score, so in this respect the Nationals have a decided edge, aside from that shown by the standing of the teams in the three contests maintained to be here.

Lefthanders Show Prowess

Moore proved far superior to his orthodox flinging rivals in the opener, holding the Nationals to four safeties, while both Acosta and Shaw walked, fooling the enemy at critical junctures. Courtney was but little less effective in the nightcap than Moore had been, hurling shutout ball for seven frames, while his mates bunched bingles on Bob Hasty in the opening encounter. Courtney and Hasty both supplemented their mound work with effective sticking, the former poling three to unscathed spots, while Hasty connected for a single and a double, both a factor in the scoring of runs.

A fumble by O'Rourke pointed the way for a couple of alien counters at the outset of the opening encounter. Dykes getting a life thereon and scoring on a double by Welch, who tallied on Tilly Walker.

The Griffiths got one of these back in the second, when Brower walked, and a wild pitch by Courtney, who scored another notch on Miller's death and scored on Shanks' single. After Shanks' single, Courtney obtained a Texas leaguer and Acosta walked to fill the bases, but Dykes cleverly handled Judge's rap.

The tying tally accrued in the third, when Rice tripped and after Brower walked, chased home on Miller's sacrifice fly.

Witt's Homer Breaks Deadlock.

Witt whacked the first ball pitched in the tag end of this frame over the right-field wall. Singles by Dykes and C. Walker followed, but were nullified when Harris converted Johnny Walker's fly into a double play.

A plain miff of Courtney by Rice assisted the Athletics to another run in the sixth. Johnny Walker was the hero of the game, containing Sam's hand, beating Courtney in the midway. Walker looked on Courtney's sacrifice fly and scored, after Dugan walked, on McCann's sacrifice fly.

The tying tally accrued painfully to the bench after attempting to hit for Acosta in the seventh. Shaw tried his hand at Courtney, but Courtney walked, a miff by Miller, usually a deadly fly catcher, making two of them possible. Witt beat a homer to right, and was forced by Dykes, who scored, and after Welch popped to Gharrity, on Tilly Walker's triple to right, the latter counting when Miller dropped in on Walker's liner, and still another tally resulting from a three-bagger. Perkins lined against the bleachers, and Moore's sacrifice fly.

One lucky single by Rice was the extent of the damage done to Moore after the third, and although Courtney's southpaw's unsteadiness permitted four Griffiths to reach the initial station, they could not do anything but twice checking them in the ninth they had a chance to do something, when a pair of walks and Dykes' fumble loaded the bases with two out, but Rice succumbed to Moore's clever hurling.

Caught on the Fly

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—The Nationals lost a little ground in the race through their fifty-fifty split, but they are still in a good place advantage to two full games.

Whether the so-called "rabbit ball" hitting base ball may be judged from the fact that more than 8,000 yesterday paid their way into the stadium to witness the contest, a record recently has reached fever heat, and that on a blue Monday, too.

The advisability of using Milan as a pinch hitter, especially against a pitcher as cunning as Courtney, was a moot question when Miller dropped in on Walker's liner, and still another tally resulting from a three-bagger. Perkins lined against the bleachers, and Moore's sacrifice fly.

One lucky single by Rice was the extent of the damage done to Moore after the third, and although Courtney's southpaw's unsteadiness permitted four Griffiths to reach the initial station, they could not do anything but twice checking them in the ninth they had a chance to do something, when a pair of walks and Dykes' fumble loaded the bases with two out, but Rice succumbed to Moore's clever hurling.

Caught on the Fly

A plain muf of an easy fly by Rice assisted the Athletics to another run in the eighth, Johnny Walker was beneficiary, and he reached second, although Harris nearly kicked himself out of the game. The Athletics then threw beat Johnny to the midway. Walker took third on Perkins' sacrifice fly. In the ninth, Dugan walked, on McCann's sacrifice fly.

Milan, having limped painfully to the bench after attempting to hit for Andy Adams, came back to pitch. Three runs resulted, a muff by Miller, usually a deadly foe of the Athletics, and a sacrifice fly. Witt beat a bounder to O'Rourke and was forced by Dykes, who scored, and the Athletics popped to Garrity, on Tilly Walker's triple to right, the latter counting when Miller dropped J. Walker's liner, and still another fally by Miller. The Athletics then took the kings lined against the bleacher fence.

One lucky single by Rice was the cause of the Athletics' first run in the eighth, after the third, and although the southpaw's unsteadiness permitted the Athletics to score two runs, the non- got any farther, double plays twice checking them. In the ninth they had a chance to do something, but the Athletics' pitcher, who had been loaded the bases with two out, but Rice succumbed to Moore's clever huring.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21. The Nationals lost a little ground in the race through their fifty-fifty split, the Yankees boosting their second place advantage to two full games.

Whether the so-called "rabbit ball" is hurting base ball may be judged from the fact that more than 6,000 yesterday's patted fly into Shibe Park, where the clotting epidemic recently has reached fever heat, and that on a blue Monday, too.

The advisability of using Milan as a southpaw pitcher, as effective as Moore was yesterday, is not apparent. The Athletics' record is so aggravated he can hardly hobble, although wild as a prairie fowl. Moore's assortment of benders made the Athletics' work was made bad. Shanks' single was the only untarnished hit he yielded. Rice's triple, although short, took was made bad by Welch and Sam's one-sacker took a lucky bound over Dyke's head. The Athletics' single was a Texas leaguer, just a little too far in for Welch to reach.

Miller's consecutive strike ended

Griffs Grab Second Game.

The Nationals lost no time getting started in the second encounter. Judge started with a shot to center, swiped second and counted on Rice's ripping double to right, but Courtney moved up on Brower's death and was nipped on a close decision trying to steal home.

Another miff of Courtney by Rice earned the third, when O'Rourke singled and took third on Courtney's smash through Dykes, who recovered the ball and tagged Harry trying to reach second. Judge's long fly scored O'Rourke.

A wild heave by McCann was the extent of the damage done to Moore after the third, and although Courtney's southpaw's unsteadiness permitted four Griffiths to reach the initial station, they could not do anything but twice checking them in the ninth they had a chance to do something, when a pair of walks and Dykes' fumble loaded the bases with two out, but Rice succumbed to Moore's clever hurling.

Griff Is After Pitcher in Deal With Rochester

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—Some news of interest to followers of the Nationals may be forthcoming from New York shortly. President Griffith is there by appointment to confer with George Stallings, former "miracle man" of the Boston Braves, who now is running the Rochester club in the International League. Stallings wants an infielder and a gardener, and said he was willing to give up a promising hurler on his roster. Griffith is very much interested, as he can use a real pitcher to advantage and has a weakness for International League talent anyway. Judge, Harris, O'Rourke, Brower and Schacht all being graduates of the Fulton circuit.

PIRATES WIN IN EIGHTH

Bunch Hits for Three Tallies Off Meadows—Will Replay Part of May 28 Game With Reds.

A three-run rally, staged at the expense of Lee Meadows in the eighth inning, was enough to give the league-leading Pirates a 3 to 2 victory over the tail-end Phillies yesterday in the National League. For six innings the game was a mound duel between Meadows and Yellowhorse. The latter fanned seven Phillies, but was nicked for three hits and two tallies in the seventh. Zinn finished the game. Judge K. M. Landis, commissioner of base ball, witnessed the contest.

The engagement yesterday closed Pittsburgh's home stay. The Pirates did not fare well with the eastern clubs on their first invasion of the East. Of the sixteen games played, the Pirates won nine and lost seven. The most disastrous series was that with the runner-up Giants, who captured three of four games.

As a result of a ruling by President Heydler, the Pirates may turn one of their losses into a victory. The league head has ordered replayed part of the ten-inning game of May 28, in which the Reds beat the Pirates, 3 to 2. Manager Gibson declared that Luque, pitching for the Reds, while in a temper, threw the ball toward the Reds' dugout and that Barnhardt of the Pirates was thrown out while trying for third, after the ball was interfered with by a visiting player on the bench.

Gibson protested, claiming a block-out batted by the Pirates had been allowed, and just before the schedule game of June 30, the Pirates will go to bat and the Reds to the field with the score tied 3-all in the last half of the eighth and two out. Barnhardt will be on third and Cuthshaw at bat.

HENDRYX SNAPS FINGER

Little Digit of Red Sox Outfielder's Right Hand Broken in Two Places.

BOSTON, Mass., June 21.—Tim Hendryx, right fielder of the Red Sox,

Norfolk Joins Dempsey's Training Camp and Will Be Used to Bolster Up Jack's Speed

GREB AND GIBBONS MAY HELP THE TITLEHOLDER

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 21.—Kid Norfolk, negro light-heavyweight, who has been clamoring for a match with Jack Dempsey, today joined the heavyweight champion's staff of sparring partners, and probably will work with him for the balance of the training grind. Norfolk is regarded as one of the leading light-heavyweights of the country, having fought all the best men in his division. Jack Kearns, manager of the heavyweight champion, considers the acquisition of Norfolk to Dempsey's staff of sparring partners as a valuable asset. Norfolk is aggressive, a clever boxer, and Kearns thinks he can develop Dempsey's speed.

Norfolk is the first of a number of high-class boxers who will be brought into camp to put Dempsey on edge in the final ten days of training. Harry Greb, the Pittsburgh light-heavyweight, and Mike Gibbons, the St. Louis middleweight, are expected to join Dempsey's camp for the final drive.

Gee May Be Dropped.
There is a possibility that Battling Gee may be dropped from the champion's staff because of his inclination to keep away from Dempsey instead of facing the champion to extend himself. Gee, who was knocked down three times and had two teeth knocked loose the first time he boxed Dempsey, managed to keep out of range yesterday. The fighter lost all of his first time he boxed Dempsey, but steps for every step he took forward. Larry Williams appears to be the only sparring partner in camp who gives Dempsey a work-out. Yesterday Williams nearly scored a clean knockout over the blonde sparring partner. The champion caught Larry flush on the jaw with a right hook, knocking him to a sitting position, and only the ropes stopped him from falling out of the ring. Despite

Eats Uncertain; No Palace Cars for Jack in Old Days

(This is the second of a daily series of sketches of ring battles of Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier.)
DEMPSEY, in 1915 and 1916, when next week's meals were not always definitely scheduled, traveled on brakes and beams, rather than in cushioned compartment cars on his journeys from one fistie engagement to another. His travels took him to New York in the late months of 1916.

GEORGES' BOXERS LOSE

Journee No Match for Weinert and Italian Joe Gans Beaten by Ratner.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Georges Carpentier's sparring partners, Paul Journee of France and Italian Joe Gans of Brooklyn, were so severely punished in ring bouts at Edgewood field, Brooklyn, last night that the referee stopped both contests. Journee lost in the fifth of a fifteen round match to Charley Weinert, Newark heavyweight, and Gans lost to pugilist Ratner of New York in the tenth of a twelve-round match. Journee was game, but slow of movement and was knocked down by the fast and clever Newark heavyweight three times in the fourth round and three in the fifth. Journee weighed 135 pounds and Weinert, 155½.

Gans was all in at the end of the ninth round and took a count of nine in the tenth, when the referee intervened. Gans weighed 155 and Ratner, 156.

JOHNSON, CULPRIT, WINS

Negro, Who Evaded Arrest in United States, Scores Over Moran in Paris.

(This is the sixteenth of a daily series of thumbnail sketches of previous fights for the heavyweight championship of the world.)

Some time after he defeated Jeffries, Jack Johnson was indicted on charges of violating the Mann act, but he evaded arrest and finally journeyed to Paris.

When the exchequer shivered a bit he accepted a challenge from Frank Moran of Pittsburgh, and they faced each other in France on June 27, 1914. The negro warrior scored a victory on points in twenty rounds. Moran was game and stubbornly stood up to Johnson's assaults, which had not the steam of the champion's earlier attacks. Johnson possessed all of his old-time skill, however.

There was not a single knockdown or anything like that during the fighting blow. Johnson's superior skill and his incessant upreaching kept Moran in submission. Moran's attack lacked the power to dispose of his adversary.

The crowd was as cosmopolitan as Paris itself. There were barons and dukes at the ringside, and earls and duchesses, too. Sporting men of many nations had come to the formal evening garb which Europe honors its boxers, were part of the throng.

It was the first time that a champion as old as he had ever defended his title and Moran was then thirty-three years old, Moran's senior by almost a decade.

The referee of the fight was Georges Carpentier.

WILL TRAIN ON GRIDIRON

District High School Foot Ball Players to Get Workouts at Meade Encampment.

Foot ball players of District high schools attending the 3d Army Corps "meade" training camp, to be held at Camp Meade during August, ought to have the jump on other team aspirants when they report for practice next September. They will have the benefit of two weeks of real gridiron drillings under the direction of competent coaches while learning the rudiments of military science, for the War Department intends to pay special attention to the development of athletes during the camp term.

Twenty-seven members of Central's squad have applied for admission to the camp, and a number of Business boys will take advantage of the opportunity. Eastern and Tech are interested in the project and expect to be well represented, while Western probably will have some of its gridironers in training. The general condition, in addition to the preparatory foot ball work they will receive, will go far toward fitting the boys for the annual championship campaign.

The purpose of the camp, briefly told, is to initiate the upbuilding of an organized reserve, ready for service in the defense of the nation should an emergency develop. The camp is open to young men between the ages of sixteen and thirty-five. Attendance entails no expense and the nearness of Camp Meade would permit Washington boys to visit their homes during the week and fortnight.

"PASSES" ALL SOLDIERS

Carpentier Never Fails to Admit Men in Uniform to His Training Quarters.

MANHASSET, N. Y., June 21.—Former soldiers of the world war apparently have not forgotten the slogan, "Your uniform is your pass," which during the conflict was adopted for them in many places of amusement throughout the country. The man attired in his old-time fighting duds never fails to gain admittance to the camp of Georges Carpentier.

And Manager Descamps has been prompted to inquire whether the American expeditious forces have been demobilized or not. He declines to answer until he has formed an army corps have called to see the challenger in action during the last two weeks.

Georges started out by presenting each of his former fighting companions an autographed photograph, but the demand soon exceeded the supply, and now they must be content with the ever-ready smile, a handshake and a "Hello, buddy."

Displays Defensive Tactics.
In five rounds of sparring yesterday, two with the French light-weight, Marcel Denis, and three with the negro heavy-weight, Joe Jeanette, Carpentier exhibited the defensive tactics he has been developing in preparation for his fight with Dempsey.

Many of the experts asked Manager Descamps to let Georges show something, and they were not inconsistent that the wily little Frenchman consented. Carpentier called on Denis first and he went at such speed that the little fellow appeared slow. He hurt Denis badly when on one occasion his right crashed into the fighter's jaw. He shouted "Oh!" and caught Denis in his arms to save him from a fall.

Carpentier has been taking lessons in defense from Jeanette, who was noted for his ability at this part of the game. The event was in an even faster than he had with Denis. He evaded Joe's punches for one round, then they fought at close quarters. Georges took a number of body punches with a smile and worked an uppercut well.

POUGHKEEPSIE REGATTA SHOULD BE A THRILLER

BY WALTER CAMP.
NEW YORK, June 21.—The Poughkeepsie regatta tomorrow is going to produce the greatest race the Hudson has seen, even if it is to be over only a three-mile course. Never has a boat race possessed so many elements of interest, and the result grows more and more a puzzle.

There has been evidence that the Navy crew has been able to slow down their boat quite successfully without losing speed. This would go far toward making the Midshipmen favorites for the event were it not that it is an old boat race truism that what a crew has once learned it never shakes off entirely. The Navy hesitates to make the event a real race, as it is in a real race men assert, it reverts to first principles. That is the thing that makes many hesitate to place full confidence in the efforts of these huskies.

Columbia would be a strong favorite were it not that the Blue and White crew reached top form so early. There are many who believe that it is impossible to hold a crew at its top notch. That condition comes only once and should come race day, not before. However, Coach Rice is a wise mentor and has been preparing for this race all year, so he is fully trusted by the Columbia cohorts. California, like the Navy, has been modifying its stroke. This may have lessened rather than improved their chances because with the race once under way, if the pace is hot, they will shoot up the stroke.

The critics are getting ready to let Syracuse and Penn down easy, but both Coaches Ten Eyck and Wright object. Somewhat old boat race followers cannot forget times when either Penn or Syracuse, although not favorites, finished first.

Finally not even the most optimistic Annapolis supporters or those who pin their faith to the Blue and White of Columbia can help hearing in retrospect those cheers—"Cornell, I yell, yell, yell"—that so often have greeted an Ithaca crew first across the finish line.

Bogash Stops Bartfield.
BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 21.—Louis Bogash of Bridgeport scored a technical knock-out over Soldier Bartfield of Brooklyn in the third of a scheduled fifteen-round bout last night.

Quality First.
The following year promised to be even more successful. In one of the earliest bouts he knocked out in one round Wetnek, who had nearly held him even in one of the 1907 contests. Four victories by knockouts and nine bouts won on points, including triumphs over Charlie Ledoux and Paul Til, both famous bantams, comprised his record for the year until Carpentier ran into Gloria, a veteran, who stopped him in six rounds.

This was the first time that the Lenox youth had won the count. Defeat at the hands of a more experienced boxer did not discourage either Carpentier or Descamps. From the whole, Georges' development had been phenomenal and none recognized that act better than the shrewd little man who has piloted the boxer to his present pitch of prominence.

CHAMPION SIXTH CHILD OF A FAMILY OF EIGHT

WILLIAM HARRISON DEMPSEY, the name by which the world heavyweight champion was christened, was born twenty-six years ago in Manassa, Col. The prefix Jack was assumed by the big fellow when he had grown to man's estate, and had chosen the fistic ring for a livelihood. As a fighter he had the idea, and a good one, that by assuming the Christian name of Jack some of the glamour, if not the wonderful boxing science, which the original Jack Dempsey, Brooklyn's famous Nonpareil, possessed as the middleweight title holder, might revert to him.

The champion is the sixth child of a family of eight. Three of his brothers and three sisters are alive, but the youngest of the eight, who was named Bruce, died about two years ago. When Dempsey was seven years old his parents, Hiram and Celia Dempsey, with all their children, moved from Manassa to Montrose, Colo., where they lived for nine years. Then the Dempsey household was shifted to Salt Lake City, Utah, and that is the place which they, including the champion, claim as their home.

Inherits Fighting Blood.
Born of rugged parents—Dempsey claims that he has Irish, Scotch and Indian blood in his veins and insists that the fighting qualities for which all three of these races are famous have been bred in the bone and blood and have come to him in generous portions from his ancestors.

Most of Dempsey's early life was spent in the open on a farm, but later he alternated by working in the mines except in harvest time, when he found it more remunerative to devote his strength to reaping wheat and other crops in the grain belt. In this way Dempsey kept himself in fine physical condition, the hard labor developing the wonderful muscles which proved to be such a useful factor in his winning the world heavyweight title.

Unlike his challenger, Carpentier, Dempsey had very little early training for a career in the fighting arena, while the French champion was a close student of the glove game and an actual competitor when he entered his "teens." According to Dempsey's own story, his first fistic encounter was in an improvised ring at Montrose, Calif., when he was about nineteen years old. His opponent was a young blacksmith named Woods, whom he knocked out in the third round. This initial contest netted the now champion $25. His next fight also resulted in a third-round knock-out. Andy Malloy, who had previously walloped one of Dempsey's older brothers, being the victim.

POTOMACS WILL RACE FOR REGATTA BERTHS

BY H. C. BYRD.

TIME trials and final selection of the men who will make up the crew or crews to represent the Potomac Boat Club at the People's regatta at Philadelphia, July 4, will be held Thursday evening at 6 o'clock. Three eights are in training for the senior, intermediate and junior races, but probably only two will make the trip, and possibly one, depending on the result of the trials.

The boats which win through to entrance in the regatta may not have the same personnel, as shifts are certain if the trials show that breaking up one of the boats will make two crews stronger.

Instead of sending each boat over the course in a time trial, Coach Hexco plans to let the three start a race against one another and have several watches catch each boat as it crosses the finish line. This race probably will be the best on the Potomac this year, as no rowing regatta is to be held here, and there is not sufficient difference in the strength of the senior, intermediate and junior eights to cause anything other than a close race, according to one member of the club.

Coach Hexco said he did not know and would not pick the crews until after the race Thursday. He seemed to think there are chances of very few, if any, changes in the senior boat, but that the junior or intermediate might be shifted somewhat. The senior boat, too, will have some new faces in it, though, unless it measures up to expectations and beats the intermediates and juniors by the margin the coach thinks it should.

While no announcement is forthcoming from the People's regatta, it seems likely that the senior and junior boats will be the entries, with an additional entry in the senior singles.

It is believed by several who have watched the crews in action that the juniors can beat the intermediates and that the seniors can whip the juniors by only a small margin. That being the case, if the seniors make good enough time in winning to warrant a belief they should have a fair chance at Philadelphia, the seniors and juniors seem to be the logical choice to make the trip. This would leave out the intermediates unless some of them do well enough to displace men in the senior boat.

Central High School oarsmen have a new boat, the one ordered last spring having arrived. Some of the high school boys are working out this summer and probably will get the use of the boat before the opening of school. If this is done, as is anticipated, will have some new faces in it, though, unless it measures up to expectations and beats the intermediates and juniors by the margin the coach thinks it should.

While no announcement is forthcoming from the People's regatta, it seems likely that the senior and junior boats will be the entries, with an additional entry in the senior singles.

It is believed by several who have watched the crews in action that the juniors can beat the intermediates and that the seniors can whip the juniors by only a small margin. That being the case, if the seniors make good enough time in winning to warrant a belief they should have a fair chance at Philadelphia, the seniors and juniors seem to be the logical choice to make the trip. This would leave out the intermediates unless some of them do well enough to displace men in the senior boat.

Central High School oarsmen have a new boat, the one ordered last spring having arrived. Some of the high school boys are working out this summer and probably will get the use of the boat before the opening of school. If this is done, as is anticipated, will have some new faces in it, though, unless it measures up to expectations and beats the intermediates and juniors by the margin the coach thinks it should.

With every tire priced at true worth, what need would there be for "discounts"

BUSINESS concerns may be divided roughly into two classes. One goes on the idea that the public doesn't think much. The other believes that public good sense makes the right decision nine times out of ten.

Concern No. 1 likes to keep away from facts. Concern No. 2 is anxious to place all the facts possible before people.

It is interesting to watch these conflicting methods working out in the tire industry.
